Rogers Indorses Smith's Stand on "Baloney" Photos

(Special To The News)

NEWTON, Kan., July 20. — Al Smith did a thing the other day that I don't think has received enough publicity; it was a God-send to America, and smartest thing a candidate ever said.

Some photographers wanted him to pose in the act of laying bricks.

He said, "I can't lay bricks, and any bricklayer that saw it would know I couldn't. That's a baloney picture, and I am not going to stand for any baloney pictures during this campaign."

Now he may lose the photographers' vote, but he will gain the entire picture reading public instead.

I will always claim that those Coolidge cowboy baloney pictures last summer drove him out of the White House four years too soon.

Yours,
WILL ROGERS.

PA NEWC OBSERVES

Last night's cloudburst is the central theme for conversation everywhere this morning. Most everybody has a different story to tell as to the damage by the deluge.

Hundreds of auto drivers experienced the "thrill" of being stalled along the streets in the midst of the deluge last night. The terrific downpour and the raging torrents on the streets tested the mettle of any car to plow through. And many of them took the count. After the storm had ceased which was about two hours after its start scores of motorists were busy trying to get the cars in motion again.

Stalling of cars on the county highways last night afforded a real menace to traffic. When a car was dead it was just as likely to be in the middle of the road as out of the way of traffic and motorists who travelled through the storm had an added menace of dodging around the stalled cars.

There were some persons who took advantage of the deluge to enjoy "bathing" in the city streets or perhaps "bathing" is a misnomer. Anyhow here and there about he city as late as near midnight persons were noted on the streets in bathing suits.

Campers and those living in summer cottages along the streams in Lawrence county watched the rise of the waters during the cloutburst last night with anxious eyes. Those who were camping out in tents certainly had an experience that they will not soon forget.

When one takes into consideration the amount of water that comes down a street when it rains as hard as it did Thursday evening then the efforts of that group of men who are urging bigger and better storm sewers almost seem futile. For, to get a sewer large enough to carry that amount of water one would have to undermine the whole street.

This will certainly be a year in which the farmers need relief. Crops are hard hit. Hay is beaten down. What is cut is rotting on the ground. Wheat also is beaten. Too much rain!

Tonight the New Castle Motor club will meet at the city building in the council chamber. The meeting is scheduled for 7:30. Will you be there as a member? You owe it to your city and county.

With the thermometer hovering around 95 degrees most of the day, people were unanimous in agreeing that Thursday was about the hottest day this summer. And they were almost right, although Pa Newc did dodge numerous brick bats in explaining that it was not the heat, it was the humidity.

Again a group from the Y. M. C. A. are out along the Slippery Rock. Pa Newc wonders how tehir tents stood this morning following the cloud burst of last evenig.

The late David Jameson, pioneer of the Automobile club of New Castle received his first ride in the steam car built by Frank Douds and fellow machinists in 1900, the story of which was in yesterday's News. Remember that the engine and air pump of New Castle's first automobile is up at the Ban Franklin Junior high. It's worth a trip to see it.

JAPAN ALSO ACCEPTS TREATY OUTLAWING WAR; ALL BIG POWERS IN LINE

(International News Service)

With Japan's acceptance today of the proposed American multilateral treaty to outlaw war, all the big powers have now signified their willingness to sign.

The nations that have accepted the treaty are Great Britain, France, Italy, Japan, Belgium, Germany and Poland. Britain accepted the pact in behalf of four commonwealths of the British empire—India, Australia, South Africa and New Zealand.

Canada and the Irish Free State, having their own diplomatic representatives at Washington, have accepted independently.

Czecho-Slovakia gave notice of acceptance, announcing that a note probably would be handed to the American minister at Prague today.

Advices from Moscow indicated that soviet Russia would sign the treaty.

Negotiations already are under way which are expected to lead to acceptance by Spain.

It is now believed that a conference will be held in Paris in August or September for the formal signing of the treaty.

Probe Shooting Of Guards In Bronx County Jail; And Suicide Of Prisoner

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, July 20—A searching investigation was launched today in an effort to determine where John F. McCabe, a prisoner in the Bronx county jail, obtained the two revolvers with which he killed two keepers in a jail break attempt last night. McCabe, who was faced with almost certain life imprisonment as a fourth offender under the Baumes law, shot and killed himself when other keepers blocked his escape.

Officials believe the weapons were smuggled to McCabe by a young Italian who visited him at the jail yesterday.

All available police were called and tear bombs and riot guns were rushed to the scene to prevent a further outbreak. Ten thousand persons crowded to the streets around the jail.

Keepers Unarmed.

Keeper Morris Broderson, 34, was shot when he entered McCabe's cell to lead him out for an hour of exercise. Keeper Daniel Horgan, 53, who tried to stop McCabe on the floor below, was the next victim. Both died almost instantly. They were unable to protect themselves because the keepers were not allowed to carry guns on the theory that convicts might snatch them.

A horde of other keepers rushed up the stairs and blocked McCabe's escape. Cornered, he took his own life.

Eighty-eight other prisoners in the jail were thrown into an uproar.

District Attorney John E. McGeehan declared today that McCabe had attempted to interview him yesterday. "He probably would have shot me, had I consented to see him," said McGeehan.

The statistics were based on the report and recommendations made by Fuller & McClintock recently. The report was submitted as the result of council asking Miller and Harvey Milholland, engineer for Union township, to confer and present statistics.

Miller said 13,170 persons in Union township would have to be provided for.

He reported the upper west side sewer would cost $105,000 of which Union township would pay 35 percent.

Three Fire Calls During Storm

Two Are Found To Be False Alarms; Other Is Auto Blaze

Three fire alarms were sounded Thursday evening during the storm, Fire Chief Charles H. Lynn reports. Two of these were false.

At 10:45 the firemen were summoned to Arlington avenue where they found the car of H. Duncan of R. F. D. 4 in flames. This was caused by a short circuit in the wiring. Damage amounting to $25 was done.

At 10:30 Thursday evening No. 3 company answered a call to Cascade street, where it was reported that a two-story dwelling was on fire. When the firemen arrived on the scene they could find no fire.

The Buckeye plant on the Butler road was reported struck by lightning at 10:20 Thursday evening. No. 4 company answered but they could find no trace of fire. On the Butler road the water was so high that the men had to desert their trucks and wade to the plant.

Question Suspect In Bombing Blast That Kills Man

(International News Service)

ROCKFORD, Ill., July 20.—A second bomb was found here today planted in another automobile in the garage from which Vernon Plager drove his own car yesterday a few minutes before a terrific blast wrecked the machine and literally tore him to pieces.

Discovery of the second bomb proved to police that Plager had been killed by a similar device and set at rest a vague theory the explosion resulted from gasoline.

It gave them evidence upon which to question Paul Reed, 30, bachelor and admirer of Plager's wife, Mrs. Iva Cook Plager. In a dying statement Plager named Reed as the one who sought his death.

Mexicans Begin Mourning Period For Late Leader

All Mexico For Next Nine Days Will Mourn Death Of General Obregon

CONGRESS SESSION HAS BEEN POSTPONED

Move Under Way To Retain President Calles In Office For Two-Year Term

(International News Service)

MEXICO CITY, July 20.—All Mexico today began a nine-day period of mourning to honor the memory of their departed leader, President-elect General Alvaro Obregon.

The government has lifted the veil of censorship imposed a few hours after General Obregon was assassinated. The extraordinary session of congress, set originally for today, has been postponed until July 30.

The purpose of this session had originally been to take up various reform laws backed by the Obregonists, but it is now believed that at the session the Obregonists will attempt to push through legislation which will permit President Calles to remain in office for two years more.

Six-Year Term

These backers of the late leader plan to rush through a transitory article to the amendment passed last year providing for a six-year term of president. The amendment, as drawn up contains no date of taking effect. According to the plans of the Obregonists, the transitory clause will meet the date as November 30, and

Gangsters Wound Four In St. Louis

Three Men And Woman Wounded By Gangster Bullets; Baby Is Unhurt

(International News Service)

ST. LOUIS, July 20.—Gang warfare flared in St. Louis today as three men and one woman were wounded with buckshot fired into their automobile. A baby in the arms of its mother was uninjured but the woman received severe wounds.

The shooting occurred just as the last load of furniture left a house in South St. Louis. The family had entered two cars when two other autos drove up loaded with gunmen and opened fire.

One man, who gave his name as Joe Stallone, was found slumped over the steering wheel of his car. The injured woman gave her name as Mrs. James George.

Stallone told police he had been visiting at the house, helping with the moving, and the two automobile loads were preparing to drive away when they were fired upon.

Hughes Asked To Lead Speaking Campaign Of Republicans In East

Charles Evans Hughes Asked By Representative Tilson To Be G. O. P. Speaker

Vice President Dawes And Senator Curtis To Be Mid-West Standard Bearers

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, July 20.—Charles Evans Hughes of New York will head the Republican speaking campaign in the East if he accepts an invitation to be tendered him by Representative John Q. Tilson, head of the eastern speakers' bureau, it was learned today.

Tilson, who is with Herbert Hoover, Republican nominee, in California, messaged his intention to Republican leaders here.

"We intend to ask Mr. Hughes to head our speaking campaign in the East," Tilson wired. "I am sure that he will accept, as he is a good Republican. I would like for him to speak at several places and to close the campaign in New York."

Dawes to Help

Tilson also disclosed that he will accept the offer of Vice President Charles E. Dawes to do all he can to help the ticket. Dawes conveyed his willingness to Hoover in a conference in Chicago recently.

Dawes will speak in both the East and West, under Tilson's plan. One speech will be in New York and another in Boston.

Charles Curtis, Republican vice presidential nominee, will be invited to take the stump in the East as well as the West, Tilson said.

Hoovers' campaign, it has been definitely determined, will be made principally by radio, although the nominee has an excellent radio voice he is admittedly not a whirlwind on the stump. The nominee, leaders here are informed, will remain in Washington throughout the campaign, with possibly one or two excursions afield.

Hoover was joined by a small group of his boyhood friends at Benecia, they included T. C. Gregory, regent of Standard university; Milton Esberg, wealthy tobacco man, and Mark Requa, all of San Francisco, and all of whom went to school with Hoover.

Authorities Are Now Faced With Problem Of Settling Cause Of Loewenstein's Death

With Body Recovered French And Belgian Authorities Are Perplexed

Did Belgian Fall Out of Plane Or Was Death Case Of Suicide?

(International News Service)

PARIS, July 20.—French and Belgian authorities were faced today with the problem of ascertaining whether Capt. Alfred Loewenstein, Belgian financier, fell out of his plane accidentally while crossing the English channel on July 4 or committed suicide.

The finding of the late finacier's body by the crew of a Boulogne fishing boat yesterday put an end to all rumors that Lowenstein's disapeparance was only a hoax to make people think he was dead.

His body was found floating face downward about ten miles off Cape Griz Nez and was identified by a wrist watch on which his name was engraved. The body had begun to decompose and was scarcely recognizable.

The body was taken to the Boulogne morgue from which it was shipped to Calais after it had been examined.

Ice-Breaker Has Abandoned Rescue Work In Arctic

Ice-Breaker Maligin Forced By Lack Of Fuel To Return To Supply Base

(International News Service)

MOSCOW, July 20.—Owing to shortage of fuel the Russian ice-breaker Maligin has abandoned the search for possible survivors of the Nobile expedition and the Amundsen relief squad and is returning to Archangel, according to a radiogram received by the Soviet relief committee today.

The ship's commander said that further search with planes was dangerous owing to the rapidly melting ice. Floes that were solid a few weeks ago are now so broken with fissures as to make landing with a plane impossible.

The Krassin, sister ship of the Maligin, is at King's Bay, Spitzbergen, where the seven rescued members of the Nobile party were transferred to the supply ship Citta Di Milano.

Two Guardsmen Are Missing In Crash Of Ships

Two Coast Guards Believed Drowned As Patrol Boat Crashes Into Steamer

COLLISION OCCURS NEAR CAPE MAY

Government Probe Of Disaster Is Expected; Was "Hard Luck" Boat

(International News Service)

CAPE MAY, N. J., July 20.—Two coast guardsmen are believed to have been drowned when the 75-foot U. S. patrol boat CG-113, was rammed and sunk early today by the passenger steamship Culbertson.

The two men believd drowned were Clarence Haines, 29, of Pleasantville, N. J., first machinists mate on the boat, and DeWitt T. Hale, 25, of Atlanta, second class machinists mate.

There were seven men on the boat, four of whom were asleep when the collision occurred, according to the story told by the five survivors. The government boat was cruising about in the heavy fog when it was suddenly struck amidships by the big steamer.

Sank Quickly.

The survivors said it rolled over twice and sank. Arthur P. Becker, in charge of the boat, and James Daubler were in the pilot room. Cecil Boggess, chief machinist, was in the engine room.

Haines and Hale, the two missing men, and Urban Wright and Thomas Riddick, the cook, were asleep below. Riddick, who has escaped two previous crashes, said he was suddenly awakened as the boat rolled over and seized the top of the ladder leading to the deck. Wright was unable to explain how he managed to get clear of the cabin but said he thought he was washed free by the water. Haines and Hale were presumably caught and carried down with the boat.

A short time later other coast guard craft, cruising in the vicinity, reach-

Readjustment In Bituminous Fields Sought By Union

Movement Under Way To Adopt Policy For Sending Miners Back To Work

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, July 20.—The long slow progress of readjustment and rehabilitation in the bituminous coal industry gets underway here Monday when the policy committee of District No. 5, United Mine Workers of America meets to determine upon what basic wage scale the union will place its hopes of sending its striking membership back into the mines.

With the Pittsburgh Coal company, world's largest bituminous operators, the Pittsburgh Terminal corporation and other large producers antipathetic toward the new peace move the union is expected to center its negotitions on the smaller independent operators with whom it hopes to reach an agreement on a basic wage scale.

Abandoning their demands for the Jacksonville sale the miners are expected to propose a scale in the neighborhood of a $6 a day base. This was reported as the figure being mentioned in the Ohio and Illinois fields and it was thought likely that this region will fall into line.

Abandonment of the demand for the Jacksonville scale came at a time when conditions in the industry were taking a slow turn for the better. Favorable freight rates on Lake cargoes and better shipping facilities in the Southwestern Pennsylvania fields contributed to this condition, together with the approach of the fall season.

TERRIFIC RAIN STORM DELUGES THIS DISTRICT; MUCH DAMAGE RESULTS

Streets Are Badly Washed Out; Police And Firemen In Rescue Work

TRAFFIC TIED UP; PLANT IS AFFECTED

Big Run Highest In Years; Rain Falls In Torrents For Two Hours

Entire force of New Castle's street department is feverishly at work today repairing the damage done to the streets and sewers when a cloudburst hit the city about 8:30 o'clock Thursday evening, not abating until after 11. One bridge is reported down, numerous streets have been washed out, and in some places the sidewalks have been undermined.

A trifle before nine o'clock the worst damage was done, according to the police. Then the water rushed down New Castle's hills, flooding parts of the business section, and in some cases gaining entry into basements. On the lower part of East street and Neshannock avenues almost all of the basements of stores and dwellings were affected. Water washed into stores on Croton avenue.

The Neshannock creek rose several feet. The Shenango river came up nearly five feet. Sanitary sewers in many parts of the city ceased to function properly. Storm sewers were filled to overflowing.

Damage All Over City

According to police reports, damage was done in all parts of the city. Moravia street near Terrace avenue was undermined. At the intersection of Pennsylvania avenue and Lyndall street the sidewalk was undermined and the police roped it off, placing a red light to warn pedestrians. At Division street, near Cunningham avenue, a bad hole was washed in the street. At Cascade street and Croton avenue the sidewalk was washed out. A bad washout occurred at the intersection of Grant and State streets and a part of the street was washed out.

On the Youngstown hill a small building was almost washed away by the raging torrents swirling down the slopes. A small bridge on Jane street was washed out. At the corner of Quest and North streets the intersection was washed out and it has been roped off by the police department.

Small washouts have been reported on Sankey street, Lutton street, McCleary avenue and other thoroughfares.

The Bell Telephone Company reports that service was uninterrupted. At the plant it is stated that the entire damage of the storm was 15 lines down and 70 telephones out. These

Two Inches Of Rainfall In 90 Minutes

The greatest fall of rain in many months for the shortest period of time happened last night between the hours of nine and ten-thirty when 1.83 inches of rain fell. It was measured at the Water company pump station near the Shenango, northwest of this city.

According to C. F. Johnson, chemist at the plant and weather man, the rain was less out there than it was in the city.

Thus from all indications there was considerably more than the 1.83 inches of rain in the city.

G. O. P. Leaders Mapping Budget

No Limit To Republican Contributions To Hoover Campaign This Year

THREE MILLION IS ULTIMATE GOAL

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, July 20.—The Republican campaign budget may be fixed when National Chairman Hubert Work and National Treasurer J. R. Nutt complete a study of departmental estimates today.

One thing was settled as a result of the preliminary discussions of the financial aspects of the campaign. There will be no limit on individual contributions.

In taking this attitude, Nutt declared there was no reason to suspect a donor simply because he was wealthy enough to give heavily to the campaign. He also emphasized the tremendous amount of money necessary to properly organize an election effort in a large and wealthy country.

Although $3,000 has been tentatively fixed as the budgetry figure, it is probable that the budget will be left open to "supplemental estimates" later on. The 1924 campaign cost slightly more than $3,000,000 and neither Work nor Nutt appeared to have hope of conducting the Hoover-Curtis fight for less money.

The Democratic national organization, Nutt predicted, will have a larger "war chest" than the Republicans. He referred to the Democratic refusal to fix a limit upon subscriptions and the financial power of the Democratic chairman, John J. Raskob.

TO REBUILD MACADAM SECTION OF NEW CASTLE-ELLWOOD ROAD

According to an announcement made today, the Pennsylvania Department of Highways is at present asking for bids for the reconstruction of the macadam section of the New Castle-Ellwood road located in Shenango township and running from the New Castle city line to the beginning of the concrete pavement, approximately 2,519 feet in length.

The announcement says that the new road will be of one course reinforced concrete pavement, 18 feet in width. It is probable that the section of road running over the bridge over the Western Allegheny railroad will not be paved.

Sealed proposals for the work will be received at the state capitol until 10 a. m. on August 10. The contract for the work will be awarded as soon after as possible.

If Old Man Noah were alive, or say he had been here last night, with all his flood experience, I think he still would have seen a sight. For Noah's flood was in days gone by when they had no night clubs or radio, and when it started to rain back there, why the ark was the only place they could go. But the flood last night, for it was a flood, would have tickled old Noah I really think, for the streets and the tracks and the garden lands were covered and plenty with lots of drink. And old Noah I claim would have had a treat, though he knew his floods in a outstanding way, still Noah had no automobile to stall, its drier and ninety-two today.

Just Folks

By EDGAR A. GUEST

AN INCIDENT

I was in overalls, as they Went riding by my grounds today,
And looking up I saw them pass
Within their limousine of glass
And waved to them a friendly hand
They were too proud to understand.

They fancied me a workman there,
As if it mattered if I were,
They fancied it were shame to be
On friendly terms with men like me
And made it plain they wished no calls
From men who dress in overalls.

And yet I chuckled at the pride
With which my greeting was denied,
For just a week or so before
When fashion's evening dress I wore,
This self-same pair to flatter me
Had asked me to their house for tea.

Poor fools, to think a friend worth while
Must always wear the garb of style!
Poor fools to think that any dress
Can make man's value, more or less.
Poor fools, who overalls can't see
Yet ask an evening dress for tea!

Five boats and an airplane weere patrolling the scene of the crash at noon, attempting to locate the exact point where the CG-113 sank. The CG-113 has figured in several other collisions and on each occasion has been repaired and sent out again. A government investigation of today's disaster is expected to get under way immediately.

The crash occurred about an eighth of a mile away from the Overfalls lightship, which is about three miles off the cape. The water at that point is approximately 85 feet deep.

thus make the amendment apply to President Calles.

General Antonio Rioz Zertuche, chief of Mexico City police, issued a statement last night in which he charged Catholic clergy with "responsibility for the crime".

He asserted that investigators already had procured evidence which would involve several members of the clergy. He said that he would soon make their names public as the "intellectual authors" of the assassination and would reveal the nature of the evidence against them.

A wide search is still being made for further suspects. There have been many arrests.

The assassin, Jose De Leon, will be given a regular trial by the tribunal, the police chief said. He did not indicate just how soon the trial would be completed, nor when the execution, which is certain to follow, would take place.

ELECTORAL COLLEGE AND PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION

FOREMOST among the checks and balances provided by the fathers of the republic for insuring the nation against unwise and hasty action is the electorol college, about which much is heard in presidential years, only to be forgotten for the intervening quadriennium.

It was the original idea of the constitution-makers that the people should vote only for electors and that when these dignitaries gathered in the electoral college they were to select the chief magistrate. No such interpretation has been placed upon the function of the electoral college since Washington's time.

The people early made it apparent that they would choose the man who should be president and the electoral college speedily became merely a means of registering their choice, the individual electors having but to cast their votes for the candidate of the party on which ticket such electors were chosen.

One way in which the electoral system works, however, is to cast the entire vote to which each state is entitled for the candidate receiving a majority of the popular vote. There have been instances where a state has divided its electoral vote, but the general rule is that here given, regardless of the size of the majority, whether large or small. Thus if a certain state would give Smith 101,901 votes and Hoover 101,902 votes Hoover would receive the entire electoral vote of that state as certainly as though his majority ran 202,000

There are certain circumstances under which the working of the electoral college can give a minority candidate a heavy lead over his opponents. Under normal conditions, however, the system works as its framers intended. It carries out the idea that the states elect the president according to the will of a majority of their voters.

THE OPTIMIST

ONE of the encouraging evidences of the sanity of the public mind is the growing impatience with so-called "Pollyannaism." Genuine optimism does not consist in disregarding the unpleasant parts of life. Neither is it a thoughtless satisfaction with present conditions without thought of the future. Still less is it that state of mind that distinguished Mr. Micawber, who was always "waiting for something to turn up."

Antecedent to a justificable attitude of optimism must be an unprejudiced and thorough analysis of the situation; in which both dark and bright sides must be equally clear; then a profound conviction, based on the evidence of history and personal experience, of the slow but irresistible conquest of right over wrong, of truth over falsehood, not yet fulfilled, but eternally fulfilling.

But no one who has merely a passive faith in the rightness of things is entitled to the name of optimist. His belief must be quickened into action, and here the pragmatic modern attitude manifests its sensible demands for consistent living. The old proverb, "All things come to him who waits," has received a characteristically modern supplement, "But it comes a whole lot quicker if he goes after it."

ALL FALLING INTO LINE

THREE more nations, Great Britain, Belgium and Poland, have formally accepted the Kellogg treaty. There never was any doubt as to the action of the former, although the Labor M. P.'s have been baiting Sir Austen Chamberlain on the ground of undue delay. That there should be no misunderstanding of the terms of the agreement was essential. Secretary Kellogg made these clear in the preamble to the revised draft. The Covenant of the League, the Lacarno Pact, existing international treaties and the right of self-defense are explicitly recognized. All the notes of acceptance refer to this fact.

In the British reply the state department is reminded that intervention by armed force in cases where the interests of the British Empire may require it, as in Egypt or in regions administered by Great Britain under mandate of the league, is understood to be within the terms of the treaty. The Belgian and Polish replies similarly recount the reservations to which there has been general agreement. These stipulations do not weaken in any way the force of the document; they simply define beyond possibility of misapprehension its scope. Thus they strengthen it both in form and in fact.

The principle involved is unimpaired by this frank recognition of the circumstances of its application. Mr. Kellogg may well be pleased by the outcome of his efforts to advance the cause of peace. It is a memorable diplomatic achievement.

Hints and Dints

Sun sets tonight 7:26. Sun rises tomorrow 4:46.

If all the closed automobiles in this country could talk we'd have to increase the judges and courts a whole lot to try the divorce cases.

The man who invented the Logan berry has just died in California. The Logan berry is a cross between the blackberry and the raspberry and sure does make a fine juice. Mr. Logan may be missed some but not as much as Logan berry juice would be missed if they stopped making it.

Show me the guy who has failed in life and I will show you a chap who always had the conviction that something was too much trouble. This means of course only those not afflicted with physical handicap.

France is putting the ban on easy marriages. This sounds funny. An American could get a divorce in that country for an apple core until recently and now they are figuring on keeping Americans out of that country all together.

In the old days we used to be around a lot where raspberries grew and where they had to be picked and we picked many a crate. We got from one to three cents a basket for picking them and sometimes the berries sold for as low as $1.50 a crate. Now berries that are not as good sell from $7 to $9 a crate and we heard of a grower who paid ten cents a box to pickers. The picker seems to be profiting along with the grower of berries it seems.

Growling never yet has changed the weather.

In Toledo, O., a gasoline company sells gasoline on Saturdays and Sundays at 15 cents a gallon which is two cents less than it is sold on other days of the week. That's encouraging getting out on the roads on the week ends all right.

All forms of gambling have been put under the ban in Atlantic City. No doubt it is thought the hotels can skin the visitors without assistance from the boardwalk gamblers.

At a meeting of the Woman's Temperance Union at Ocean Grove, N. J., Gov. Smith was lauded because he was "outspoken' but the Hoover-Curtis ticket was endorsed at the conference. Even getting favorable mention there was something every wet does not get.

A soft voice indicates two things: That you are well bred and that the awiter will serve you last.

An English Earl has given notice that he will no longer be responsible for any debts contracted by his wife. His wife was a London actress and not an American heiress.

Telling people to go to Mexico will do just about as well as telling them to go to some mythical hot place. He will at least know for sure what to expect in Mexico if he goes.

Harry Thaw was still peeved when he landed in this country because England refused to allow him to land in that country. Our immigration laws are not as strict as those of England for which Thaw might also be thankful. He is lucky to be allowed to get back home.

Germany is getting ready to extract sugar from wood on a large scale. There seems to be sweet stuff in everything. All that is needed is a way to get it out.

Because a man did not wear a coat he was denied admission to the court in which he was being tried, so his wife won the suit. Seems to us that would be a good reason for an appeal. He was also handicapped by not having a lawyer. Maybe it's just as well for that bird to let bygones be bygones as it looks as if he will not be very good at paying alimony either.

A one armed and legless flyer from Gettysburg, Pa., is planning to fly across the Atlantic. Someone ought to show him what has happened to a lot of people who have all their hands and legs.

The story of the blackness of the assassination of the president of Mexico is all told when it is said that there were five bullet holes in his back. What could sound more dastardly and cowardly?

Every now and then some postal card inquirer, evidently a man wants to know what will keep trousers from bagging at the knees. Well, as we have said many times before, the only sure method is for the wearer who does not want his pants to bag at the knees is to take them off when he sits down. We guarantee this.

Aviation is getting so common now that one need not be surprised to see a plane going along with a couple of horses or cows standing up in it, or with seven or eight flappers comfortably seated in a two passenger ship.

If you can't tell whether it is perfumed or medicated it is French pastry.

Very few of the big jobs are held by men who lie and shiver rather than get up for an extra blanket.

A man and woman sentenced to death for killing a young girl were freed when the girl was found alive and well. Bet they felt like a fat woman who took her corset off on a hot night.

Fares on the street cars of Chicago have been increased twenty per cent. Street car fares are another thing that will never be any cheaper. The fewer people who ride the more it will cost.

We often wonder how so many of the sheiks keep the shine on their hair when their shoes do anything but shine.

When a New Castle girl quit her job in an office and got married, the office boy danced with delight. "Thank heaven she's got a man at last!" he said. "Now somebody else will get a chance to use the office telephone."

A report comes from Texas that some of the prominent Dems there are going to be for Hoover and some of the prominent Republicans are going to be for Smith. Being a Republican and being for Smith will not mean very much in Texas. Texas will be for Smith because it is a Democrat state. Those Mexicans, and much of the population of Texas is Mexican, will vote for Smith.

We got a bunch of mail yesterday that made an armful, but the only thing we saw that interested us in the lot was our gas bill—and we think there is something wrong with our meter that is in favor of the gas company.

No doubt Gov. Smith will be accused of, among other things, of letting many prisoners out of jail so they can vote for him.

The Reynoldstown School Reunion is going to be held again this year at the Aiken School building on Pearson street. It will occur on August 14. All those who attended school there previous to and including 1890 are urged to be present. Any who attended previous to or after that time will also be well treated we are sure. It will be a treat to be there.

THE GOOD HUSBAND.

A good husband as pictured by the average young female whether married or single, is a man who has no interest in other women; who makes a lot of money and lets his wife do as she pleases with it; who keeps on praising his wife and acting affectionate no matter how lazy and sloppy and dowdy and worthless she becomes; who never does anything to cause his wife anxiety and never gets out of her reach; who doesn't complain when she wastes his money to run the household in slipshod fashion and gives him unpalatable food and lets the house get dirty; who keeps his part of the contract fairly and keeps on loving her in spite of her lies; her poor sportsmanship, her childish selfishness and her incompetence; who lets her have her own way, even though he knows the result will be disastrous and then takes the blame himself; a man in fact who gives her all any woman could ask and is content to get nothing in return.

About the greatest insult one can offer to some ginks is to ask them to pay for something. When people are unknown they should not expect credit. We would not ask credit from any one we did not know and would not expect it. In fact we would not ask it from many we know for reasons we keep a secret.

"You can't build a town wih a hammer,' says the Dade County (Fla.) Courier. No nor a business either.

A man who is foolish and yet is fond of using his own judgment, who is in humble circumstances and yet is fond of assuming authority; who while living in the present age, reverts to the age of antiquity, such a man is one who will bring calamity upon himself,—Confucius.

The fellow who says very little if anything, gets into the same class with the bore who says entirely too much.

It may be true that love makes the world go round, but it certainly doesn't make a man's salary go round when he is married and has a houseful of wife and kids.

OUR OWN LITTLE "QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS."

How can you prove this side of the river is the other side? The other side of the river is one side and this is the other side.

Why is the man who will not bet as bad as the man who bets? Because he is no better.

What is the onlly kind of knot in a cord which was never tied and cannot be untied? A knot in a cord of wood.

Every town has a family that leads in everything including the number of unpaid bills.

When some people ask our opinion of some of their acts we do not answer them because they are so much younger, bigger and stronger than we are. That is one place we can say nothing.

TO A WEAVER OF NETS
Franklyn Blanning

I said, when you and I had met,
A kindly heart I've found;
May Friendship weave for us a net
To draw Life's blessings 'round.

Lonely fears were turned to cheer
Through the knotting of the net;
Strands not tied in a day or year,
But by human needs well met.

The net was made by a loving heart
With every tender thought,
For Friendship's nets not of the mart—
It's fabrics can't be bought.

Mexico's Puzzle.
Mr. Rockefeller Has Fun.
Honor to Russia.
Kellogg's Happy Day.

By ARTHUR G. BRISBANE
(Copyright, 1928, by N. Y. American, Inc.)

Mexico with Obregon murdered finds itself in a puzzling, difficult position.

But Calles has the army, which means that he has Mexico. He will undoubtedly run the government until he chooses, through the congress, a man to succeed him. Or a dictatorship might arise.

Conservative Mexico and foreign capital dread the seizing of power by an ultra-radical labor group. But, again, Calles has the army and the army has the weapons and uses them without hesitation.

The young murderer of Obregon was evidently a political fanatic, quite willing to die in carrying out a plan. His last note addressed "To my family" and signed Juan, read, "Knowing that I will die in carrying out my principle, I bid you farewell."

Fortunately for peace and order, the instinct of self-preservation prevents the writing of many such notes. Each man's life comes first in his estimation. Wise Providence arranged it so.

John D. Rockefeller, almost 90, enjoyed himself on Tuesday. He could not find an oil well, a diamond mine or make 20 millions in a quick turn. That would not interest him.

He drove a coal wagon down the street in Oswego. With the driver's consent he climbed to the high seat unaided and was sorry to go back to his big limousine.

Learn, oh little man, that there is happiness in the world outside of owning a billion dollars or a big limousine. The interesting thing is doing something yourself, driving a coal wagon or raising the most wonderful baby.

Whatever your opinion of Russia and her bolshevism, you will notice this—Russia sent the ship and fliers that rescued the group of men stranded hopelessly in the Arctic.

Except for the work of courageous Swedish fliers, Russia did all that was done. Other big European powers were content to watch the Russian ice breakers at work.

This is a happy day for Secretary Kellogg. Britain accepts his "no war plan", which now stands as an international agreement. Chamberlain was cheered as he announced British adherence in the House of Commons.

The world knows that war does not pay, and fears another war, which might actually wipe out what we call civilization. But the question is, "Can you bind the nations by good resolutions?" You might, with resolutions, plus adequate preparation.

Dr. James B. Murphy of the Rockefeller Institute tells the London cancer conference of a "growth substance" in nature that causes tumors to grow.

This substance, injected in chickens, has caused growth of tumors 90 times in 100.

It is hoped that when there is a growth substance there will also be found a growth preventing substance.

Once discovered, that would conquer or check cancer growth.

Gradually sicence draws closer to the cancer mystery. The healing of a wound is like a cancer growth, except that it stops when the healing work is done. The experiments with chickens are important, because, as explained to this writer at the Rockefeller Institute, the production of cancerous growth within the body of a chicken is so difficult as to be almost impossible. In only one case had it been possible to create cancer in a hen. There were scores of rats and mice, each with cancers artificially produced, bigger than the animals' bodies.

The chickens may yield the growth prevention substance.

In Europe the thermometer has risen to 140. Had it risen to 240 everybody would have died, the blood literally boiling in their veins.

Temperature at the sun's surface equals many thousands of degrees, and deep inside the sun, under frightful pressure, it is hot beyond our imaginations.

We should be grateful that our heat and cold are so well balanced, grateful especially for our wonderful bodies that keep the blood at about 98 degrees, on the equator at 120 above, or in the Arctic at 60 below.

The international conference of communists at Moscow has an important idea.

Communism must get ready for a great war surely coming between the imperialism of Britain and America.

America and England, you see, will each want the whole world. When they fight, communism will have its chance.

A few generations back the idea might have been correct. But great nations and big business have learned that war does not pay, and what does not pay does not interest them. If communism waits for its chance until British and American imperialism fight, it will wait some time.

THE LOVE CURE

A little old lady by the name of Miss Wilkins, a school teacher, was admitted to the county hospital.

She had come in that morning and three nurses and the doctor were in her room talking over her case. The doctor was an old man of German descent, with bushy whiskers and a gruff voice.

While they were talking there was a knock at the door of the room. The head nurse opened it and there stood a little ragamuffin of a boy some sixteen years of age who was barefooted, with tousled hair, and who presented a general appearance of a tatterdemalion.

"What do you want?" inquired the nurse.

"I came to see Miss Wilkins."

"Well, you can't see her now. She has just come in. She is sick. Any message?"

The boy bashfully said, "No. I just wanted to see her a few minutes. I wanted to love her."

"Well, come back after a while, tomorrow, and perhaps you can see her."

The doctor had overheard the conversation and said, "Hold on a minute. Let the boy come in."

The boy was ushered in and the doctor asked him what he wanted. He said, "I don't want nuthin' but just to love her a few minutes. I ain't goth nuthin' to give her, but I love her better than anybody else and I didn't know but what that would do some good.

The doctor turned and dismissed the nurses. Then he said to the boy, "Go ahead."

The boy fell down on his knees by the bed and took hold of Miss Wilkins' hand and bowed his head upon it. The doctor quietly stepped out of the room.

In about a half hour the boy came out.

"What did you do?" said the doctor.

"I didn't do nuthin' 'cept' just loved her. She is the best woman I ever knowed. She is the first person that ever treated me like a human being, so I wanted to do somethin' for her."

"All right," said the doctor. "You can come back about this time tomorrow, if you want to."

The boy went away and the nurses returned. They looked inquiringly at the doctor. He pulled at his whiskers awhile and then said, "I have been trying an interesting experiment. I guess you might call it the love cure. We doctors of any sense know we can't cure people. We can produce some effects with drugs or surgery, but what makes people get well is still a mystery. I suppose it is nature or God or something which we don't know anything about. So you do your part in nursing and care and it all may help some. But this love business is the strongest force in the world. It is the force that brings life in the first place and I suppose that it heals life. When you make a gash in a tree the tree makes a scar for it and covers it up. When anything goes wrong with us nature goes to work in her own way to try

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

"MAN POWER" vs "HORSEPOWER".

Much has been said recently both in the National political conventions and in the columns of the press regarding unemployment. There are men and women out of employment. There is no use trying to disguise that fact. There are always men at work perfecting old machines and designing new machines planned to lessen the costs of manufacturing. The great cost of making anything is the cost of human labor and with the installation of every machine comes the discharge of more workmen. There have been many such machines installed and there have been many men thrown out of employment thereby. The Farmer has been fighting increased cost of labor for a long time and in his fields have the inventions been particularly busy.

"Another machine was patented at Washington and a few thousand more men were jobless," remarked a welfare worker recently, a bit ironically. But whether frequently mentioned figures on unemployment, throughout the country present a true picture or not, it is a fact that electricity, steam, waterpower, windpower, etc. have supplanted a great percentage of the work which was done by hand only a few years ago. The wonder is that there are not by far a larger number of "jobless" in the comparatively recent and rapid transition from "manpower" to "horsepower."

In the agricultural industry—the one traditionally synonymous with hand power—perhaps the greatest change has been affected. According to a recent survey, it takes about 75 times less man labor to raise an acre of corn today in Nebraska, than it did before the age of machinery. That is, while but four-man hours per acre are needed today, it required ten-man hours in 1920; twenty-man hours in 1900; thirty-man hours in 1890, and 300-manhours with the use of the hoe to grow an acre of corn in Colonial days.

This is one reason why millions of country people have migrated to the urban districts for occupation in the last decade or two.

INVENTIONS

Just one request to my readers. I wish they would not write to me about their inventions. I love to get letters from readers, and I try to answer each one, although I do sometimes fall short in this. But when I get a letter about some wonderful contrivance that one of my readers has invented, I am almost wholly flabbergasted.

It just happens that I have no mechanical sense whatever. I once learned to operate a bicycle, and I now operate, with mild success, a typewriter and a camera. These are the limits of my mechanical attainments. I cannot put a ribbon into my typewriter, and if the camera refuses to work I have to take it to the man in the store.

So, you see, it is hopeless to try to make me appreciate the magnitude of your invention in detail. Drawings, carefully made to scale, help almost not at all. As soon as I see a picture of a cam and a lug, apparently about to disagree violently about some question of poppet valves, I become bleary-eyed and my reason, such as it is, totters perceptibly on its make-shift throne.

I love to hear about the reader's family, his problems, his dogs, his ambitions, hopes, fears and philosophy. I especially like to learn the reader's opinion about the greatest person in the world, past or present. In fact, there are few subjects I don't like to read about if my readers are interested in them. And all of the few are inventions.

If my inventive readers will pardon the heretical opinion, I believe that this civilization of ours is cursed with inventions. Out where I live, on the outskirts of New York, it is almost impossible to leave the windows open in the summer time, on account of the inventions. These are inventions that blare forth seven kinds of jazz and the elegant mispronunciations of announcers. There are inventions that go roaring past on wheels, and there are inventions that go flying through the air overhead, hitting tremendously on all 12. There is an invention in my study that rings and rings, and when I speak into it is says, "What number? 'Scuse it, please!"

Yes, I'm all for progress, but sometimes I am bowed down by the tumult of the inventions. This is one of the times. So please write me in detail about anything else.

U. S. Men Prefer Smiles, Thinks French Beauty

By ALICE LANGELIER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

PARIS, July 20.—"American gentlemen may prefer blonds, but I found they prefer smiles above all," said pretty Raymonde Allain, "Miss France" who has just returned from Galveston with the title of the most beautiful foreign girl and second in the international beauty contest.

"Smiling lips and sparkling eyes are the first requisites for beauty winners in America. I was warned that I must keep on smiling all the time and although I just didn't feel quite up to the mark at times I had to keep at it. Sad, pensive beauty is not appreciated on the other side of the water."

Mademoiselle Allain liked the American girls but thinks they are a little bit too much like pretty dolls.

"They all look alike," she explained," every one of them from the forty-eight different states had the same tiny nose, with big eyes and circumflex mouth. They are wonderfully built, not so dainty as the Latin type but strong and healthy-looking. In my opinion, they are only women whom the French need to fear in any world beauty contests. They are very chic, too, even more so than I had expected to find. They spend so much money on their clothes and they know how to wear them."

Miss France was much impressed by the thousands of people who came to the contest in automibiles and the great crowds who waited in the torride heat to know the judge's decision. And until she learning that whistling in America means approval quite the contrary in her own France, she was just a bit troubled.

Berlin Artificial Ice Parties Made Possible By New Processes

(International News Service)

BERLIN, July 20.—Ice skating parties in the drawing room are to be the rage in fashionable circles in Berlin this summer.

Artificial ice which is guaranteed not to melt even in the warmest temperature has been made possible by a marvellous new process of artificial freezing by means of a chemical preparation. This artificial ice can be laid down at short notice and for comparatively small cost on any floor without damage to the floor.

A rink of this ice has already been laid down at the Berlin "Lido" the luxurious swimming baths off the Kurfurstendamn, where Berliners are revelling in the sensation which they claim beats anything at St. Moritz.

The rink, which has been laid out on an open-air terrace and is surrounded by a beach of specially imported Baltic sand, can be reached only by swimming through the pool.

Prominent hostesses are preparing to issue invitations for this freak entertainment at home for the end of July when it is expected hot weather will hit Berlin.

They found Miss Wilkins indisputably brighter and freer from pain. Somehow she got well.

Catgut Responsible For Lockjaw Cases

Scientists Find That Tetanus Bacilli Can Resist Sterilization

(International News Service)

EDINBURGH, July 20.—Surgical catgut, used by physicians in sewing wounds made by operations, has been found responsible for nine cases of lockjaw occurring in a Scottish hospital.

The cases were thoroughly investigated by the Scottish Board of Health, as eight of the nine patients who were affected by the tetanus germs died.

Various methods of setrilization were investigated and it was discovered that tetanus bacilli could resist many of the approved systems. Certain approved antiseptics were found ineffective for the purpose of destroying the germ.

Catgut is prepared from the intestines of sheep, and has been employed by surgeons in millions of operations. The discovery of the tetanus cases has created a sensation in medical circles, as it has always been thought that catgut, when thoroughly antiseptic ated, was a safe medium for surgical employment.

Two Drunks Appear In Police Court

Two drunks tottered out of the cells and into police court this morning to hear their fate. Both were old men; both had a week's stubble on their chins, and both had a month's grime on their necks. They had been picked up last evening by the officers.

One drunk had been found laying on South Jefferson street shortly after eleven o'clock, his clothes soaked. He had been out in the rain. The other one, according to the docket, was a star boarder at a house on the south side. He turned up in an intoxicated condition last evening, and his landlady called the wagon.

They did not have a story to tell. It was noe's first appearance at police court, so he was dismissed. The other took five days in the county jail to sober up.

Search For Woman Who Escaped From Mercer Hospital

(Special To The News)

MERCER, Pa., July 20.—Authorities are making a search today for some trace of Mrs. William Lehmonen, 41, of North Bessemer, who made her escape from the Mercer hospital, last night. She was in the institution under observation, pending an operation.

She got out a window and has not been seen since.

Rum Runners Have Hard Time Passing Lake Erie Patrols

(International News Service)

CLEVELAND, July 20.—Rum runners attempting to smuggle liquor across the Canadian border this summer are "fighting shy" of Lake Erie shores because it is practically "hermetically sealed" by armed patrol boats that "few dare to challenge".

This was the gist of statements made recently by R. E. Burri, the chief of the United States customs border patrol and Arthur P. Fenton, federal customs collector of Cleveland.

"Very little if any liquor is coming across Lake Erie at present," Fenton asserted. "Should smugglers attempt to bring any across we are now equipped to give them battle. With our fleet which now consists of seven armed speed boats operating in and about Cleveland and with a coast guard fleet of 25 with whom we cooperate they hardly have a chance.

"Seizures we made early in the season of Toledo and Erie, Pa., have had a moral effect on the would be smugglers. They seem to be completedly scared out."

"There is a possibility that Canadian contraband liquor may get in overland from Buffalo or Detroit—but not from Lake Erie," Burri said.

The lake shore roads also are being patrolled by squads of federal officers in automobiles, Burri added. Auto patrol men said surprisingly little liquor is being smuggled in.

Immigration Agents In Palestine Accused Of Serious Offense

(International News Service)

JERUSALEM, July 20.—Serious charges have been preferred against the Immigration Director of Palestine, Albert M. Hyamson, accused of having detained illegally more than two years ago, Dr. Samuel Benjamin, an American rabbi on his way to the States. The rabbi, who occupied a pulpit in Florida, was seized in the train at the Gaza station, was hauled out by order of the accused and kept in detention until the following day.

Charges of common assault have been instituted also against a junior official of the Immigration Department and against an officer of the Police and Prison Department for "exercise of ill-treatment" upon the rabbi.

The charge against Mr. Hyamson is that he issued a circular letter and telegram to police and immigration officials instructing them to detain and arrest the complainant.

A senior officer of the Immigration Department is cited as a witness because the original telegraphic circular instructions were sent by him on the instruction of Mr. Hyamson.

The investigating magistrate is requested by Horace Samuel, a Jerusalem barrister, to impound all documents dealing with the matter and to issue a summons against the accused, the "complainant having no objection to bail being allowed at an amount to be fixed by the magistrate."

It is understood that the order to detain Dr. Benjamin was issued because he was alleged to have engaged in speculative financial undertakings of Tel Aviv.

PETER'S ADVENTURES IN ANIMAL LAND

BY MRS. FIRRENCE SMITH VINCENT

MR. McCAW AND HIS COAT

"Quick as a flash the talkative stranger right about flirted. Now that his back was toward us we could see what a handsome bird he was. His tail was the most gorgeous thing we had yet seen! All blue and scarlet, it hung down far below him and was almost twice as long as he was. And he didn't have a dull feather on his body. Those that were not red were blue and yellow. How strong the fellow looked.

"'Wonderful!' we cried. 'Beautiful creature, who are you?'

"The fellow looked at us in amazement. He even seemed a little bit disappointed, we thought.

"'Don't you know, little birds? Can't you guess?' asked he. 'I thought that every one knew me, at least by sight. I am Macaw, the Parrot, and I am the largest of my race in all South America.'

"Bob and I were delighted. To think that we had met a Parrot! We had heard about them, but Macaw was the first we had ever seen. We wanted to ask him a lot of things, but now he gave a deafening cry that made husband and me clap our wings to our ears.

"'The monkeys are coming! Hurrah! Hurrah!' screamed he. 'Wait till I call some of the family over. Then you shall see some fun.'

"Whew! What a noice that chap could make! Luckily his friends heard him after he had called but once or twice, and over they flew. Soon we were surrounded by other gay birds like the talkative stranger, but we didn't pay much attention to them. We were too much interested in the queer creatures that now came swinging into view.

"Why they looked just like tiny Two-Legs, grown very, very old. They had the funniest wrinkled faces, and some of them were bald. Then we caught sight of something that made up gasp. The creatures couldn't be Two-Legs after all, for they had tails, long, curling tails, and no—Yes!—they were swinging from the branches by them! Throwing themselves from limb to limb, on they came, talking to each other all the while. Bob and I kept our eyes on the leader. He was doing the queerest things and all the others followed him. He would choose one branch far away from the one on which he was swinging and throw himself at it. Surely he would fall! But he didn't — not he! Straight as an arrow he would drop upon the branch, turn upside down and swing back and forth, his funny tail twisted around the limb. And how he would laugh! The funny faces he would make!"

"THE MONKEYS ARE COMING, HURRAH!, HURRAH!!" SCREAMED HE

Mrs. Bobolink could go no further with her story. The thought of the monkeys proved too much for her and she rocked back and forth upon her stalk of clover, laughing as hard as a Bobolink could.

Opens Campaign Of War On Cancer

Dicease Specialists From All Over World Attend Conference At London

(International News Service)

LONDON, July 20.—The world war on cancer enters a decisive stage this month, when the international conference brought into being by the directors of the British Empire Cancer Campaign meets for the first time in London.

Four hundred and twenty cancer specialists from all parts of the world will attend.

It has been made possible largely owing to the generosity of Sir Richard Garton, honorary secretary of the campaign, who is bearing the entire cost of bringing over 100 of the delegates.

The chief meeting will be held at the Royal Society of Medicine. Other meetings will be held at the Radium Institute, St. Bartholomew's Hospital, Royal College of Surgeons' St. Mark's Hospital, Guy's Hospital, Lister Institute, Medical Research Council Laboratories, and the Wellcome Museum of Medical Science.

Foreign delegates will be received by King George at Buckingham Palace on the opening day of the conference, at present set for July 16.

Blood And Thunder Novels Lose Place To Scientific Books

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, July 20.—The American public is reading biographies, autobiographies and scientific books and not the "blood and thunder" type of novels several years ago, according to Carl B. Roden, librarian of the Chicago library.

Roden claimed the main library and branches are being frequented by more persons this year than any previous year.

"The public is beginning to educate itself," said Roden. "More and more we are getting requests for scientific books and books that would tend to educate. Mystery stories and trashy novels are being read less frequently. The public today demands better writing."

Roden decried the lack of old fashioned novels popular in 1880, the type written by Augusta Evans Wilson, Mrs. Southworth and Mary Jane Holmes. The librarian said the general public had not lost its taste for the simple love stories but so few of them appear on the market.

Roden's statistics show that youth is the greatest library read. Eight per cent of the patrons are between the ages of 18 and 25, he said.

Urges Legislation To Sterilize All Feeble Minded State Inmates

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, July 20.—Need of legislation which will require the sterilization of the State's feeble minded citizens was discussed at a meeting of the cabinet with Governor John S. Fisher Thursday.

Mrs. E. Grace McCauley, Secretary of Welfare, said that several bureau heads in her department have been making studies of the subject for several years. She said that she personally is convinced of the necessity of such legislation and intimated that it now is being prepared. The drafts will later be submitted to the entire cabinet for discussion and if approved will be introduced at the next session of of the general assembly.

The need of two additional psychopathic hospitals, one in each end of the state, also was brought to the attention of the cabinet by Mrs. McCauley.

Governor Fisher told the cabinet that he is convinced that all new construction work in any section of the state should be supervised by one department rather than which will control it after completion. The Governor mentioned as an example the state normal school and welfare building program now under way and said he believed both should be supervised by one department.

The cabinet adopted a resolution thanking A. Boyd Hamilton, the Governor's secretary, for the "tactful, courteous and efficient" manner in which he has handled the state's business and wishing him success in his new duties as Secretary of the State Senate.

Soviets Execute Former Hangmen Of Czar's Guard

(International News Service)

KIEV, Ukraine, July 20.—Two volunteer hangmen who strangled to death an anarchist would-be assassin of the czar 17 years ago, have just been executed by the Soviets as "torturers and murderers." Revolutionary vengeance knows no statute of limitations and on the 17th anniversary of the execution of Dimitri Bogrov for murder, two former members of the czar's guard, Sergeyev and Kuznetzov, faced a firing squad and paid with their lives for their part in the hanging.

Bobrov, a member of Kiev's sub rosa anarchist organization, and at the same time of the czar's secret service, fired two shots into the royal box at a gala performance of the opera in Kiev in 1911. Although intended for the czar, the shots missed their mark and instantly killed Governor Stolipin, one of the honor guests. Bogrov had been detailed to the opera as a part of the special guard to prevent an expected disturbance.

In his confession at the trial he was forced to name other members of the revolutionary organization, but he took full blame upon himself and refused to give sufficient evidence to involve others in the murder. When he was sentenced to death, Sergeyev and Kuznetzov offered their services as executioners.

The men whom Bogrov protected vowed vengeance, and although all records of the case were destroyed by fire, they waited until the fortunes of revolution gave them power and then, when nearly everyone else had forgotten the affair, demanded that the two monarchists suffer the same fate they had meted out to Bogrov.

Doctors Confer As President Suffers From Rose Fever

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, July 20.—Up in the Brule river country at the summer White House President Coolidge is suffering from "rose fever" and one might imagine the chief executive's malady was due to incessant sniffing at beautiful roses.

But that isn't the case at all, Chicago physicians have discovered.

Roses do not cause "rose fever", a group of hay-fever and asthma experts, recognized as international authorities, have learned after conducting clinics here for some time. They also discovered hay-fever is not entirely due to the flower, goldenrod, as many persons believe.

The doctors in conference here also learned that there are three hay-fever seasons, the first beginning in February and running into about May 25 and continues its suffering until about the end of July. The third period of plague is launched in the fall haying season, starting late in August and running until the first frost comes.

The first hay-fever season of the year is caused by the pollen of trees, the physicians determined; the second season, in which "rose cold" or "rose fever" is active, is started by the pollen from blossoming grasses. It is very seldom caused by the pollen from roses, as the rose pollen is heavy and moist and ordinarily is not carried by winds, the doctors declared.

The third season is the one causing the most general suffering. It is due in the Chicago area to many weeds but chiefly the ragweed and both the giant and dwarf ragweed are sources of the trouble.

A man whose hair has never been more than a few inches long will say women have no right to bob theirs.

Princess Laughs As Her Pearls Scatter

Astrid Of The Belgians Love Of Babies Causes Minor Disaster

(International News Service)

BRUSSELS, July 20.—Princess Astrid's love of babies was the cause of a minor disaster during a recent visit to Liege.

The pretty young wife of the Belgian Crown Prince, Leopold, was proceeding through the streets with her husband. During a halt, she noticed a particularly attractive baby about the age of her own little Josephine Charlotte.

"I think we have time to ask the mother a few questions," she said to the Duke, and called the woman to her car, questioning her as to her age, number of teeth and other details interesting to young mothers.

During the conversation, the baby spied the Princess' lovely pearl necklace, took hold of it and gave it a good tug. The pearls went flying and the mother was very much flustered, but Princess Astrid quickly put her at her ease by stooping down to pick them up herself and laughing off the disaster.

Finger Prints Foil Jail Substitution

Egyptian Is Caught In Clever Method To Serve Sentence By Proxy

(International News Service)

CAIRO, July 20.—To serve his sentence by proxy was the idea of Mahmond Ahmed Eid, sentenced in Cairo to one month for default.

He induced Mohamed Fued Kamel, for a consideration to undergo the punishment for him. Kamel gave himself up to the police as the gulty man and was sent to prison.

The schemers however reckoned without the finger print system. It was found in prison that Kamel's finger prints did not correspond with those of the convicted man who had been in prison before.

The real culprit is now being searched for and will serve his time—probably with interest.

Seminole Tribe Is Dying Out As Handful Still Live In Everglades

(International News Service)

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., July 20. — The Seminole is dying. Civilization has taken him as its toll.

Down in the Everglades country that little band of Indians, the remnants of a once great race, are eking out a bare living through the sale of alligator and otter pelts, animals now rapidly becoming extinct.

Sleeping on the earth, rain or shine, with only a thatch roof supported by four poles to cover them from the elements, influenza, hookworm and measles take heavy toll. Only 520 members of that great tribe remain and yet because of the old members, who cannot forget lifelong antipathy toward the white man, who drove them from their paradise into the swamp country, and become educated.

White Man's Ally

Chief Josie Billy, head of the largest of the seven remaining tribes in the Glades, has become a firm ally of the white man in education of his race, for he has realized that only through education can the Seminole survive.

Living as the race lives absolutely without any sanitation, disease finds the members easy victims. There is not a practicing physician available for members who become ill and they are attended upon by the medicine men, practicing ancient tribal rites for the banishment of the "evil spirits" which are supposed to inhabit the victim's body.

Heretofore education has made the Seminole more hostile than ever toward the white man. Billy Conopatchee, Josie's father, received a much better education than his son did, but when he returned to the Everglades, he hated the whites worse than ever.

Josie Billy does not believe that the education of the Seminole, necessary if he is to survive, can ever be accomplished until all of the older members are dead.

"Older people tell bad stories," he says. "Wait. They die off."

Thus he believes and the younger members of the tribes back him up.

Although appropriations have been made for the Seminoles by federal government, they have been inadequate, and by the time they have passed through the hands of all the agents there was little left for the Indian.

Have Hard Time

With this pittance, the Indian has had a hard time, for there is little in the Everglades to aid in making a living.

Time was when the Seminole sold thousands of plumes of the white egret and made a living.

In his little son, Josie Billy hopes to develop a real leader who will point the path for the Seminoles to a better understanding of the white race and better living conditions. He is one who will benefit if schools are provided. Julian Billy is now 17 months old.

The Seminole is making his last stand. With education, he will survive, without it,—extermination. Sun rise calls him forth from his couch and at sunset, he is content to rest. If the older men die off fast enough or change their minds, he will be saved. If not, another once proud and happy race will have entered the Happy Hunting grounds.

Parents can hasten a match by pretending to oppose it—though of course they must be tactful and not seem to be prying into the affairs of their superiors.

Guards Prepare To Break Camp

Members Of Pennsylvania 176th Field Artillery Break Camp Today

COMPETITION KEEN FOR CUP AWARD

(International News Service)

CAMP GORDON, Tobyhanna, Pa., July 20.—After two weeks of army life members of the 176th field artillery, Pennsylvania National Guard, packed up their baggage today and prepared to trek out homeward bound.

In a final review the regiment was to parade before the regimental commander this afternoon. The parade will be ended with the presentation of a cup to the unit which has been the most efficient over the year period.

Competition this year for the cup has been keen, according to Lieut. Col. Arthur P. Schook, executive officer of the regiment and donor of the cup. It is believed, however, the award lies between the battery F and D, commanded by Captains Samuel T Lindsay and Vladimir M. Fekuta, and the medical detachment commanded by Captain Alonzo T. Briney. Battery F was declared the highest rating battery in the state of Pennsylvania in the last yearly federal and state inspection.

Major Walter W. Hess, senior regimental army field instructor, who was stricken by a sudden attack of appendicitis recently and underwent an operation by Major Thomas N. Snowite of Braddock, is reported recovering. He was visited by several officers of the regiment last night.

The soldiers will leave the summer encampment tonight at 8 o'clock in two long trains of tourist sleepers and Pullmans. The trains will go by way of Scranton.

Letters Saved By Dead Queen Are Returned

By J. C. OESTREICHER,
International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, July 20.—Through the enterprise of a London newspaper, hundreds of intimate letters written by King George, Queen Mary and most of the crowned heads of Europe to the Empress Marie Feodorovna, mother of the murdered Czar Nicholas, have been recovered from the Bolshevists and returned to Buckingham Palace.

The letters, which were left behind by the Empress Marie when she fled from Russia to exile in Denmark, will be returned by the King and Queen to the senders as soon as possible.

Through his private secretary, the King has expressed his appreciation of the newspaper's action in retreiving the letters, and of its delicacy in submitting them to Buckingham Palace without divulging their contents to the public.

Extremely Valuable

As a collection, the letters would undoubtedly be worth many thousands of dollars, for they trace clearly the trend of thought of the minds of Royalty during the hectic periods before and during the war, when thrones and crowns were toppling beneath waves of Nationalism all over Europe.

The letters were written during the year 1870 to 1915. While most of them were of a domestic and personal character, others contained arresting and often humorous comments on events and personalities of the time, the newspaper declares.

In all his letters to the Empress, who was a sister of the late Dowager Queen Alexandra, King George signed himself affectionaly "Georgie." It was seen that the Russian Empress had carefully preserved every letter that she received from her nephew and his Queen.

One of the most interesting letters, according to the newspaper, was written by an unnamed German prince who was then traveling about the world. He was obviously brilliant and wily, and tried to steal a march on all the other European princes, who crouched in wary readiness, watching each other's attempts to win a crown.

Asked Empress' Aid

"I am persona grata," this prince wrote, "with the Kaiser Frederick (the ex-Kaiser's father), and the Crown Prince Wilhelm (now the ex-Kaiser, exiled at Doorn).

"The handling of my House by Austria in 1866 should be a sufficient guarantee that I never would be a friend of that false dynasty.

"Push my case with the Emperor, and give me the throne of Bulgaria. It will be just as if a Russian was on the throne. The matters, dear cousin is at your feet."

Says Ten Herbs Toned Up Badly Run-Down System

Volant Elderly Man's Stomach, Liver, Kidneys and Bowels Benefited.

While Ten Herbs is a splendid tonic for men and women of all ages—and also children, who are somewhat past the infancy stage—this new herbal compound is especially beneficial to persons of advanced age.

MR. FRANK McWILLIAMS

Those who feel the toll of years—who are weak and run-down, and whose stomach, liver, kidneys or bowels seem to be slowing up, should seek relief at once by using Ten Herbs. Many elderly persons thruout this section have been restored to long-sought health and strength by using this medicine, according to reports received by the Ten Herbs Man, who is at Eckerd's of New Castle, Inc., 30 East Washington street, this city, where he is daily demonstrating this successful preparation.

"The improvement Ten Herbs made in my condition is remarkable," was the recent statement of Mr. Frank McWilliams, of Volant, Pa., (near New Castle), to the Ten Herbs Man. "For some time my system had been badly run-down, causing me to feel miserable," continued Mr. McWilliams, who is 63 years of age, and janitor of a school. 'Food did not agree with me, and my liver was badly disordered. I was so badly constipated that I had to be continually taking a laxative. My kidneys did not function properly with the result that my system seemed to be filled with poisons, and I began to get worse right along.

"After taking Ten Herbs, my appetite is much better, and I can eat without having pains afterwards. My liver is active again, and my bowels have been regulated. My kidneys are functioning properly, and the poisons seem to have been eliminated from my system. I am pleased to recommend Ten Herbs to anyone suffering as I was.'

The Ten Herbs Man is at Eckerd's of New Castle, Inc., 30 East Washington street, this city, where he is daily meeting the public and explaining the merits of this medicine. He will gladly answer any questions pertaining to this preparation.

Change In Award Of School Contract

Eckles Says Kittaning Firm Is Low Bidder On Rechecking

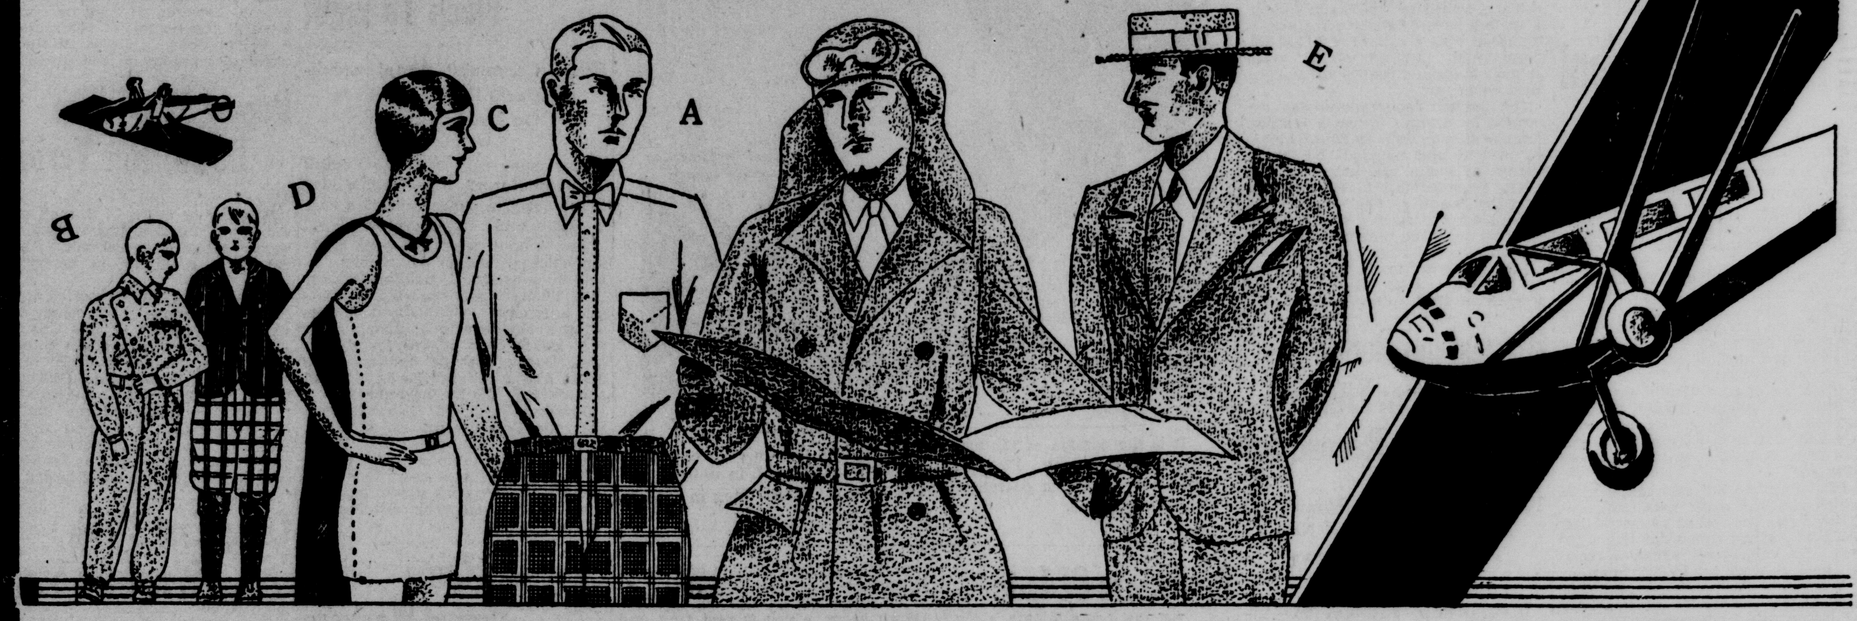

The original award of the general contract for the new 21-room school house at Hillsville to the Troutman & Christman company of Sharon at their bid of $74,604, has been rejected and a new provisional award let to John McGregor of Kittanning at his low bid of $73,961, according to Robert Eckles of the W. G. Eckles company.

Mr. Eckles states that the bid of the Sharon concern was a provisional one and that they were not bound to it. In checking over the specifications and figures it was found that the McGregor firm of Kittanning offered the lowest price and a provisional award was let to him immediately.

The entire cost of the 21-room building of fireproof construction, which will have an automatic temperature regulating system will register around $99,050, Mr. Eckles declares.

In the world of science light means heat. In the world of romance, light lowers the temperature.

California Has Only Woman As Oil President

(International News Service)

SAN FRANCISCO, July 20.—It's all right for women to enter fields so long monopolized by men, but when they do they should at least let a man run the business but not so with Mrs. Dollie Adams of San Luis Obispo.

She is the only woman president of an oil company in the United States.

When Mrs. Adams came to San Luis Obispo ten years ago from the Texas oil fields, all of the oil field workers cast drilling glances in her direction and said:

"Pipe the dame. What's her line?"

But Mrs. Adams bought a lease, pitched a tent on it, started drilling and was soon carrying the golden fluid from her well in her own pipe line.

She organized her own company of which she was made president.

She holds the record of one of her wells of drilling approximately 4,400 feet with cable tools which is equal to the best mark set by any man.

From this don't get the idea that Mrs. Adams is a burley Amazon hard to distinguish from a male.

To the contrary she is a small, dainty woman—and quite refined.

So well do the directors of her company think of her ability, that recently they took out a $50,000 insurance policy on her life.

A large oil company gambled on the ability of Mrs. Adams to make good when she first started by furnishing her with equivalent to be paid for if she produced oil.

Their confidence has since been justified as Mrs. Adams has recently started drilling her third well.

Oil and water will not mix, but Mrs. Adams has proven that oil and air will as she often makes trips by plane from the fields in San Luis Obispo to the headquarters of her company in San Francisco.

"All wool and a million hectares wide."

That in short is the description by Juan Braun, owner of one of the largest sheep farms in the world, of the great wide open spaces of Chile, South America, where acres are Hectares and millions of sheep hardly know one another.

Braun, his wife and two of his six children recently left Valparaiso and are in San Francisco enroute to interesting places scattered about the globe.

The farm operated by Braun covers some 400,000 hectares, to use "pampas" lingo, or about a million acres. More than 300,000 sheep are sheared annually on the farm and 150,000 are killed for export, mainly to the British Isles.

This farm, however, is only a unit of the famous Sociad Esplotra dora, which is owned by the Braun family. It spreads over 5,000,000 acres and is organized with a capital of $9,000,000. More than 1,500,000 sheep graze on their lands and 500,000 are slaughtered each year.

The Sociad Esplotradora was organized by Braun's father, a Russian immigrant, who went to South America in 1874 and founded the family fortune by selling seal pelts.

Not being cramped for space, is given by Braun as one of the main reasons for the success of the sheep industry in Chile which ranks second only to the nitrate business.

The new government of Chile under General Calles Ybanez is very prosperous, Braun declared.

Homestead Dance Marathon Ended; New Record Set

Three Couples In Homestead Dance Marathon Set New Record Of 565 Hours

(International News Service)

HOMESTEAD, Pa., July 20.—Another marathon dance record? Anyway, here's the latest bid for recognition:

Today at 9:40 a. m., Homestead's long distance hop was brought to a close when the last couples walked off the floor after dancing for 565 hours and 35 minutes. The old record recently set at Motor Square Garden, Pittsburgh, was 535 hours.

Twenty-two couples began the dance on June 26 at 8 p. m. But only three of them remained at the finish. They were Frank Leach and Thelma Berry, both of Homestead; John Bendall and Dora Lewellyn also of Homestead; and J. E. Shaffer, of New Kensington, and Vera Humbertson of Sharpsburg.

The couples consented to pool the two prizes of 10 per cent and 5 per cent for their 24 days hopping each couple will receive about $350 or $175 a person.

Says Rattlers "Fine Eating"

(International News Service)

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., July 20.—Nature teachers at the two study camps of Pennsylvania State college have discovered that rattlesnake meat is quite palatable and eat it three times a week, according to a statement made public by the college.

All but seven of the 57 men and women in the camps have joined the "den of rattlers", capturing the snakes themselves.

"Rattlers are fine eating, if you forget for the minute what you are putting in your mouth," seems to be the consensus of opinion among the campers.

Daughters Of Late Millionaire Live Like Two Hermits

Misses Isobel And Margaret Stone, Daughters Of Former Governor Battle Life

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, July 20.—Sitting on the rail of a half submerged barge in Sherman creek, near the foot of Dyckman street, Miss Isobel Stone, daughter of the late millionaire governor of Pennsylvania, William A. Stone, today told of the struggles she and her sister Margaret are making to achieve their ambitions.

"I suppose our rich relations will be shocked stiff," she said, "But we should worry. We're not asking them for anything."

Miss Stone is a singer by profession, her sister a sculptor. She explained their plight by saying that the family estate was tied up in litigation and that pending solution of the case they were practically penniless.

So they live on the old, broken-down barge, which is rent free, and row ashore in a leaky boat with one oar. Now and then Isobel gets an engagement to appear in a night-club, or Margaret sells a bit of statuary. In between times they live as best as they can.

"But it's better living like a hermit," Isobel said, "Than being 'in society'." Margaret shrinks from this publicity, but if it will do us any good, I'm for it."

And it appears that it may do some good, for today several celebrities of the theatrical profession were hopeful of getting Isobel an engagement.

Mayor Cuts Down Size Of Chicken Flock To Eight

Hears Complaint About Chicken, Duck, Rabbit Nuisance On Moravia Street

How many eggs does the Doudek family of Moravia street need a day? is the question which decided a case in police court this morning.

Mrs. John Doudek had been keeping chickens, ducks and rabbits. It became a nuisance. Sanitary Officer L. S. Hoon investigated. John Levinski, a neighbor, complained. Something would have to be done.

At police court it was found that Mrs. Dudek kept 27 chickens, five ducks and many rabbits in a small pen, close to the Levinski garage.

The court pondered. It was decided that the Doudeks get rid of their ducks, and that they limit their chickens to eight or 10. The family does not need more than four eggs a day, was the court's contention. The Doudeks promised. The case was dismissed.

Cappellini Quits United Workers

Fiery Leader Of District No. 1 Mine Union In East Hands In Resignation

(International News Service)

SCRANTON, Pa., July 20.—Rinaldo Cappellini, storm center of union strife here for months, today tendered his resignation as president of district No. 1, United Mine Workers of America, to the district executive board, in session here. The board was to act on it later in the day and name a successor to Cappellini.

John Bohlan, a veteran board member, who is popular with the 60,000 miners in the Scranton and Wilkes-Barre region, will likely be chosen head of the district.

In a statement Cappellini gave ill health as the reason for his resignation. The general opinion among the miners, however, is that he stepped down at the request of International President John L. Lewis in the interest of harmony in the district.

Report Mail Plane Down; Not Verified

Whether or not a U. S. mail plane was forced down in this vicinity during the severe electrical storm Thursday night could not be determined today.

Early today it was reported that a government plane had come down some place in the county and that the mail had been brought into the local office. When informed of the report this morning, both Postmaster Edwin W. Crawford of the local office and the Mahoningtown authorities stated that they had received no plane mail and that the report was without foundation as far as the two local offices were concerned.

Camp East Brook Weathers Storm

Miss Phyllis Beal, camp director at Camp East Brook, the Y. W. C. A. summer camp, reported this morning there was no damage done by the heavy storm of Thursday at the camp. Of course during the heavy storm there were a number of the girls in camp quite badly frightened, but when the storm ceased were all right again.

Americans Show Class In Play For Davis Cup

Hunter And Hennessey Defeat Italians In Challenge Round Of Play Today

(International News Service)

ROLAND GARROS STADIUM, PARIS, July 20.—Playing without the services of their ace and team captain, Bill Tilden, the American Davis Cup tennis forces virtually declared their way into the challenge round with France by taking the first two singles matches in the interzone finals with Italy. Francis T. Hunter, New York, and Johnny Hennessey, Indianapolis, scored the victories for America, each winning his singles match in straight sets.

Hunter won in hollow fashion from Gaslini of Italy, who was substituted for Stefani, regular singles man, 6-1, 6-1 and 6-0. Hennessey had slightly more difficulty with Baron De Morpurgo, Italian ace, but finally prevailed, 6-4, 7-5 and 6-2.

The victories of Hennessey and Hunter were scored with impressive finality and left no doubt in the minds of those present as to the ultimate outcome. The Americans need only score one victory in the three matches remaining to meet the French in the challenge round for the famous grail of competition.

The performance today was the answer of the American team to the downfall of its champion and leader, Tilden, who was dropped from the team on the eve of the matches, on charges of having violated the player-writer rule at Wimbledon. Tilden sat on the sidelines today and encouraged his former mates at all times.

Pigeon Fanciers To Convene Here

Bird fanciers interested in pigeon racing will meet Sunday morning at 10 o'clock at the office of William Cooper, 19 North Norris Way. At the meeting plans will be laid for securing a charter from the American Union.

Control Tower At Airport For Boston Heroes

(International News Service)

BOSTON, July 20.—A preliminary plan for the memorial control tower to the erected at the east Boston airport in honor of Boston's air heroes —both living and those who gave their lives to the cause—has been presented to Governor Alvan T. Fuller.

The memorial, to be erected in honor of Miss Amelia Earhart, first woman to span the Atlantic in an airplane, and those two famous and intrepid male birdmen, Commander Richard E. Byrd and Lieutenant Albert F. Hegenberger, will be utilitarian as well as ornamental, and it is expected will serve as a model for aircraft building architecture.

Gov. Fuller Chairman

The task of perfecting the plans is under the direction of the Earhart Foundation Committee of which Governor Fuller, is honorary chairman, and through the efforts of Crosscup-Pishon post American Legion, Boston Chamber of Commerce and the Boston Chapter of the American Aeronautical Association.

The proposed plans of the building call for a structure four stories high, surmounted by a powerful beacon which will be visible for miles. The brick edifice will be approximately 77 feet in height from the ground to the beacon.

Memorial Room

According to the proposed plans, the ground floor is to be 15 feet high and will serve in the nature of memorial room. In it will be placed tablets commemorating the deeds of world war fliers, trans-Atlantic heroes and all who have advanced the cause of aviation.

The second floor will be fourteen feet high and the third story, ten feet in height. Both will be used as control and observation compartments.

Surrounding the ground floor is to be a balconade with four lights and a short run of steps leading to the wide doors of the memorial room over which will be the dedication inscription.

Chicago Beauty Contest For American Men To Pick Handsomest Bathing Suit Gent

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, July 20.—Big blonde men with carmine-painted lips, giant dark-skinned males and perfectly proportioned red-headed descendants of Adonis, all clad in bathing suits and wearing signs such as "Mr. Dallas", "Mr. Milwaukee" and "Mr. Seattle", strutting along a glass plank studded with electric lights!

Chicago may see that scene soon.

In other words, welcome to the male beauty contest, for no less a nationwide contest to select America's best looking iceman had been proposed for Chicago.

Portland, Ore., and Los Angeles are said to have already held local contests with great success and this city plans a gigantic contest of the hepulchritude exhibits with every leading city represented.

Backers of the proposed contest—an ice appliance manufacturing company—claim that the public is wearied of the bathing girl contest and Chicago has a chance to succeed Atlantic City as the premiere pulchritude contest city by staging the first national iceman battle.

The approach to the male beauty exhibit was heralded here only a short time ago when a cash prize of $1,500 was awarded to the best dressed golf professional. The winner of the contest was none other than Johnny Farrell, who showed up resplendent in a symphony of grays and blacks.

A few days after the best dressed contest Mr. Farrell proved that clothes have a great deal to do with making a man, for he went right out and won the national golf open title from Bobby Jones.

East Increases Use Of Air Mail Service

West Still Leads In Poundage Per Person But East Is Gaining

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, July 20.—The east is rapidly matching the West in "Air mindedness" when air mail is taken as a criterion, show figures gathered by the American Air Transport Association.

The poundage carried over the transcontinental routes sometimes showed the West sending far greater volumes on the basis of population than the East. However, in recent months with a larger use of air mail by eastern business houses and manufacturing concerns in getting shipments to distant points at a speed of 100 miles an hour, the East is cutting down the lead of the West in per capita poundage on the air routes now serving 38 states and 62 millions people directly and millions more indirectly.

For the calendar year 1927 southern California held the record for amount of mail produced and received, population considered. Other routes which led in the volume of air mail on a population basis were: Pueblo-Cheyenne, San Francisco-Chicago, Dallas-Chicago, Chicago-New York, Salt Lake City-Seattle, Tacoma, Spokane, Portland route.

POSTAL THIEVES CASHING FORMS

Forms With Potential Value Of $1,500,000 Being Pushed

NEW YORK, July 20.—Money order thieves have stolen blank forms with a potential value of $1,500,000 since January 1, and are now engaged in passing them all over the country, C. M. Clarahan, chief inspector at the general post office, announced today. He issued a warning to merchants, hotel keepers and restaurant proprietors to be on the lookout for forged orders.

Clarahan said that this form of robbery has become very common, the blanks being obtained largely by holding up small post office stations in drug stores and such places. He called attention to two recent robberies of money order forms which he said are now making their appearance all made out to the $100 limit.

One of the robberies in which forms numbered from 19,452 to 19,600 were taken, occurred in Hazel, Okla., and the other, forms 30,008 to 39,220, was in Brooklyn.

The man passing the Oklahoma forms is described as being about 40, five feet eight inches tall, about 150 pounds, and with brown hair and blue eyes. The Brooklyn blanks are being passed under the name of John Kratz.

No Set Limit Is Placed On G. O. P. Campaign Pledges

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, July 20.—There will be no limit on contributions to a Republican campaign budget tentatively fixed at $3,000,000, Joseph R. Nutt of Cleveland, treasurer of the Republican national committee, announced after a conference with Chairman Hubert Work Thursday.

"It may be necessary to go beyond $3,000,000 to carry on all the work of the campaign," said Nutt.

Electric food for the future, predicted by a scientist, won't be the first instance of shocking meals.

A treat is in store for the 27 members who comprise the Hudson Presbytery Y. P. C. U. auto caravan when it passes through New Castle enroute to the national convention of the Young People's Christian Union, which convenes at Conneaut Lake park on Thursday, July 26.

The visitors from New York state are scheduled to arrive at a designated place on the New Castle-Butler road around 3:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. A reception committee of Beaver Valley young people will be there to give them a hearty welcome and to escort them to the New Castle high school football camp at Muddy Creek Falls, where the afternoon and evening will be spent.

Arrangements are being made for a picnic dinner at the camp at 6 o'clock, to which all delegates to the Conneaut convention will be invited. Plans will also be made for a sports program in which everyone will have some part.

Later in the evening the Hudson delegates will be shown into the city, and will be escorted to the different homes where they will rest for the night. The group will re-assemble in the morning to continue the trip to Conneaut, where they expect to arrive shortly before noon.

Water Damages S. Mill St. Store Of William Glenn

Following the breaking of the pipe that drains off the water from buildings nearby, the establishment of William Glenn of South Mill street was flooded last night.

The terrible pressure of the water from the roofs of the other buildings which came down the pipe at the Glenn store caused it to burst and entire second story was flooded. It soon filtered down through to the first floor, flooding everything including the light globes and destroyed a piece of the plaster.

The second floor of the store is used as a storeroom by Mr. Glenn and it was filled with peanuts and other goods. However before the storm had done more than a moderate amount of damage the stuffs were removed.

Persons born under this sign are domestic, homeloving and very sensitive. They love gayety, society and dress. Their nature is happy and cheerful.

Makes Charges In Council Session

Alleges Street Commissioner Looks After Private Work Time In City Employ

Frank Cagnatti today charged during a session of council that Street Commissioner Harry Moore has used city time in looking after the construction of sidewalks by a firm which he was formerly connected.

Council requested Cagnatti to put his charges in writing whereupon council will investigate the charges.

It appears that council directed the commissioner to advertise for bids for constructing sidewalks at the Clark property (site formerly occupied by the Liberty Theatre) which was done. Cagnatti claims that not enough legal time elapsed so that he could put in a bid.

He appeared before council, voiced his complaint and the bids were rejected without being opened. Cagnatti next followed with the allegation that Moore had gone to several jobs and directed employes as to how sidewalks should be built.

Council asked if Mr. Cagnatti was sure that it was not David Moore and Cagnatti said he had been told by employes that it was Harry Moore whereupon he was asked to put his charges in writing.

Two Overcome By Heat Thursday

What is believed to have been the first heat prostration cases in this city during the recent excessive hot, sultry days were that of Frank Pfeiffer of 815 Chestnut street and Andy Zaroz of 31 High street.

Both men were overcome Thursday afternoon while employed in the Shenango tin mill. They were removed to the Shenango Valley hospital soon after sustaining a heat stroke, where their condition is reported as favorable today.

Trotzky, sick and in exile, is reported to be taking baths. A bad sign for a Russian.

Library Seeking Missing Copies

At the New Castle Public Library hey are binding St. Nicholas—that indespensible companion of childhood—for use on the children's department. But three numbers of the magazine are missing, and the librarians wish to know if someone in New Castle who takes St. Nicholas will not donate these copies to the library.

The missing numbers are those of July, 1926, December, 1925 and May, 1926. If the people who wish to give the magazines to the library will call, a page will come and get them.

Condition Of Local Banker Is Improved

The condition of Frank W. Smith of Laurel boulevard, assistant cashier of the First National Bank of Lawrence county, who underwent a serious operation for a poisonous infection in a Cleveland hospital yesterday morning, was reported as greatly improved at noon today.

The latest communication to this effect said that Mr. Smith had left the hospital and was at the home of one of his friends in that city where he is resting well.

In spite of all the wet talk, it doesn't appear that near-beer is getting any nearer to the real thing.

Robbed So Many Times; He Acts Automatically

PHILADELPHIA, July 20. — Sam Milnor, 76, filling station attendant, has been held up seven times already this year and consequently he wasn't perturbed when two young men drove into his station Thursday, asked for gasoline, and then suddenly drew pistols. On the contrary he was a bit bored.

"All right, boys," he remarked, before the bandits even had a chance to speak. "You don't need to tell me a thing. I know just what to do."

And with that the veteran elevated his hands, walked inside the building and stood against the wall.

"I know it isn't customary," quoth Sam, as his visitors went through the cash register, "but I wish you'd leave me a little change. There'll be customers here right along now."

"Okay, Pop," one of the young men replied with a grin, and poured $3 in change back into the till. Then the courteous robbers took their departure with the remainder of the cash, which totalled only $11.

State Commission Considers Pleas Against Doe Killing

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, July 20.—Members of the board of game commissioners left Harrisburg today without announcing any decision regarding a possible change in their plan to allow state wide killing of does next December. At a public meeting of the board late yesterday a score of sportsmen spoke against the commission's action regarding the killing of does as well as the three day a week plan for small game.

The commission did not adjourn its executive session until late last night. Members of the board said that the written protests filed with them and the points advanced in the hearings would be considered fully.

The majority of the Protestants who came here admitted that in some sections of the state it may be necessary to permit doe shooting but all united in opposing state wide slaughter.

Speakers asserted that in the more populous counties the small number of deer now there would be entirely wiped out if the killing of does is permitted. None of the speakers agreed with the board's contention that doe will become more wary if they are hunted or that a ratio of only one buck to three does is necessary.

The late bird catches the sleep.

Council did not feel disposed to pay the bill on account of the employe not making an immediate report. The employe has not asked for compensation.

According to report, Mr. Hawk was cleaning the revolver and had taken the cylinder out and cleaned it and had put it back in the gun, and thinking the gun was empty, had his left hand over the muzzle and was snapping it. When cleaning he had not noticed there was a shot in one cylinder, which went through his left hand shattering the bones. He had his injuries tended at the office of a seventh ward physician. The accident occurred Wednesday evening about 5 o'clock.

SOME RESULTS OF THE RAIN

The rain in the seventh ward may not have been as heavy as in other parts of the city as they tell us but it was heavy enough. Liberty street was like a river, particularly between Madison avenue to East Clayton street, a number of boys clad in bathing suits were out pushing cars through that needed assistance.

Atlantic avenue at many places is covered with mud, stones and rocks which had washed down from the hill side, debris was from an inch or two to over half a foot in depth at a number of places, Mahoning avenue also covered for a square or so.

Washout of Railroad tracks are also reported on the Pennsylvania down over the hill from Atlantic avenue and out toward Bessemer, which are being repaired.

There was also no street car service for a time to the seventh ward and bus service was used.

Chicago Museum Has A Specimen Of Extinct Bird

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, July 20.—A duck such as no present day sportsman can hope to bag, a single specimen of which is valued at more than $5,000, is included in a new exhibit containing all species of ducks found in North America, preparation of which has just been completed at Field Museum of Natural History.

The $5,000 specimen is the rarest of all ducks, the Labrador duck, believed extinct of which specimens are scarcer even than of the famous extinct great auk, according to Dr. Wilfred Osgood, curator of zoology. Field Museum possesses two specimens of the bird, a male and a female.

Only the female is included in the exhibit; the condition of the male specimen does not warrant its use in this kind of exhibit, but a replica of it, skillfully made from feathers of other birds, has been placed on display.

A Rare Duck

In the whole world only about 45 specimens of this rare duck have been preserved, declares Dr. Osgood. The bird formerly inhabited the northeast coast of America, and suddenly became extinct more than fifty years ago, since which time no living example of it has been seen, says Dr. Osgood.

In all, forty species of duck are shown. In order to make the exhibit of most service to local sportsmen, all species which are found in Illinois are designated by red stars on the descriptive labels accompanying the specimens. The hunter who bags a bird which is strange to him, whether it be from Illinois or elsewhere, can identify its species by consulting this exhibit.

Other Specimens

One section of the exhibit is devoted to the so-called river ducks; another section to the sea ducks, the well-known mallard, pintail, teal, widgeon, wood, black, canvasback, Harlequin and other favorite ducks of the sportsman are all conspicuous in the collection. Included also are certain old world types which occur accidentally on this continent.

A number of the northern species of duck in the exhibit were obtained by the Rawson-MacMillan Subarctic Expedition of Field Museum, and the John Borden-Field Museum Alaska-Arctic expedition. Mose of the species are represented by both a male and female specimen. The birds were mounted and arranged by Ashley Hine of the Museum's staff of taxidermists, who also collected many of them.

Coal Operators Are Pleased By New Rate Issue

(International News Service)

CLEVELAND, O., July 20.—Ohio coal operators expressed themselves as being satisfied with the recent decision at Washington that reduced lake cargo coal and freight tariffs as filed by the northern railroads may stand.

The ruling of the commission was believed by the operators a climax to a five year battle waged by northern operators to gain freight rates enabling them to compete with southern operators.

D. F. Hurd secretary of the Eastern Ohio Operators association declared that the "Decision will undoubtedly end the suspense of the dock buyer and should stimulate immediately, not only lake cargo trade but all of Ohios mines.

Paul's Initiation Into Church

Brass Tacks On The Sunday School Lesson

The Golden Text

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL

Paul's conversion occurred in the year 36 A. D., after which he preached for a very brief period of perhaps only a few days or weeks in Damascus, where he had gone to persecute, and then he retired for meditation into Arabia, where he spent a part of three years. Then he went to Jerusalem for a 15-day conference with Peter; then he returned to his native town of Tarsus, where he preached for a year, until Barnabas came and invited his cooperation in the growing work of the church at Antioch, where Paul, in a wonderful year's ministry, rounded out the first decade of his life as a Christian.

Paul's Prompt Beginning.

When English Presbyterianism decided to open a mission in China and asked its first chosen missionary how soon he would be ready to set out, he promptly replied, "Tomorrow!"

This was the spirit with which Paul jumped into his strangely new work at Damascus: "Straightway he preached Christ in the synagogues, that he is the Son of God." He had already wasted too much of his life on the wrong track, so he got busy immediately in fellowship and cooperation with the very disciples he had come to Damascus to persecute.

Paul's Arabian Retreat.

Between verses 22 and 23 of Acts 9, we must insert that strange theological seminary course of from 18 months to three years in Arabia, to which Paul refers in Gal. 1:15-16, "Immediately I conferred not with flesh and blood: neither went I up to Jerusalem to them which were apostles before me; but I went into Arabia and returned again unto Damascus. Then after three years I went up to Jerusalem to see Peter and abode with him 15 days." To this same Arabian prayer closet God had sent Moses and Elijah to prepare them for their active ministries, teaching us that meditation and preparation are no waste of time for those whose activity is to be rightly directed. Christ's apostles spent three years in communion with Him and under His instruction, and who will regard any portion of this as time wasted? Young people, you may make a living without much preparation, but to make a life requires preparation and meditation.

Paul Receives the Cold Shoulder.

Paul's first greeting from the Christian church was "Brother Saul", spoken by Ananias as he laid his hand affectionately upon the blinded persecutor in Damascus three days after his conversion. But unfortunately this was not prophetic of all he was to experience from the church he had joined with such fiery zeal and consecration. For we read, "When Paul was come to Jerusalem, he assayed to join himself to the disciples: but they were all afraid of him, and believed not that he was a disciple." How this suspicion and distrust of that overly conservative church of Jerusalem must have cut to the heart this noble Christian who had abandoned his all for the love of this new-found Saviour!

Barnabas Extends the Glad Hand.

There was a noble exception to this cold conservatism in Barnabas, whose very name "Son of Consolation" is expressive of that spirit of cordiality and open-heartedness that characterizes all we know of him, and that in which the church of today may well pattern him. "Barnabas took him and brought him to the apostles, and declared unto them how he had seen the Lord in the way, etc." It was Barnabas who later hunted up Paul at Tarsus and put him into the growing work at Antioch. And it was this same "Son of Consolation" who afterwards saved Mark by giving him a second chance after he had shown a yellow streak on the first missionary journey. If every congregation had a "Barnabas society" fewer of the new members would be lost to the church.

The New Nickname.

"A whole year they assembled themselves with the church, and taught much people. And the disciples were called Christians first in Antioch." Glorious nickname! It was given them by their enemies in derision of their making so much of Christ. Would that the church still merited the name for the same reason!

(The international uniform lesson for July 22 is Acts 9:19-30; 11:19-30; 12-25; Gal. 1:15-18, the subject being "Saul's Early Ministry," and the golden text: Acts 9:20, "Straightway he preached Christ in the synagogues, that he is the Son of God").

"Alice" Manuscript Now On Exhibition At Philadelphia

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, July 20.—The original manuscript of "Alice's Adventure under Ground" (afterwards developed into Alice's Adventure in Wonderland) the most celebrated children's book in the world has been placed on exhibition in the main entrance hall of the $3,000,000 new Free Library of Philadelphia.

The exhibit attracts a number of visitors daily numbering both grown-ups and children amongst the interested spectators.

This unusual and valuable manuscript was purchased by Dr. A. S. W. Rosenbach, Philadelphia and New York collector on April 3 at Sotheby's in London for $77,000.

The manuscript was written and illustrated in 1862 by Lewis Carroll (the Rev. Charles L. Dodgson) for Alice Pleasance Liddle now Mrs. Reginald Hargreaves. It contains 92 pages and also the 37 original drawings by Carroll.

Mrs. Hargreaves who was only a girl about 8 or 9 years of age when presented with the manuscript by Carroll was present at the London sale. She was overwhelmed with emotion when forced to part with it according to Dr. Rosenbach.

England In Claim For World Record In Crossing Ocean

(International News Service)

LONDON, July 20.—Does England hold the record for the time taken on a trans-Atlantic flight.

G. Holt-Thomas who founded the first London-Paris Air Express writing in a London daily paper states:

"I am informed on very good authority that in addition to England being credited with the first Atlantic crossing the time taken on that flight was 15 hours, 57 minutes.

Sir John Alcock and Sir Whitten Brown flew from St. John's, Newfoundland to the Irish Coast in 1919.

The "Federation Aeronautique Internationale" have never homologated the flight for lack of official evidence.

Day Of Windjammer Is Passing On Sea As Old Boats Quit

(International News Service)

SAN DIEGO, Cal., July 20.—The day of the windjammer is fast becoming only a chapter in the history of the sea.

The full rigged ship "Star of Falkland" of the Alaska Packers fleet is pounding to pieces in Alaskan waters, having gone aground several days ago while enroute north for the salmon trade. The Star of Falkland was one of the scant half dozen windjammers still in active service anywhere on the seven seas.

Another windjammer, the Star of India, is tied up at the docks in San Diego and will never go to sea again. It is now the property of the Zoological society of San Diego, the gift of James W. Coffroth, sports promoter and former San Franciscan.

The Star of India, like the Star of Falkland, also went aground in the far north. It started from San Francisco April 12, 1910. May 18 it went aground in Bistol bay. The officer who wrote the log was somewhat illiterate but he drew in what he wrote down an impressive and graphic word picture of a ship in distress. The log, now in possession of zoological society of San Diego, follows:

English Fliers Start Air Derby For King's Cup

Thirty-Six Planes Entered In 1,000-Mile Race Around Britain

WOMAN PILOT IS ENTERED IN RACE

By CHARLES A. SMITH
International News Service Staff Correspondent

HENDON, AIRDROME, Eng., July 20.—Thirty-six airplanes, including one piloted by a woman, hopped off here today on the first stage of the annual 1,000-mile race round Britain for the king's cup. Today's leg of the journey was to Glasgow, Scotland, via Nortich, Birmingham, Leeds and Newcastle.

The flyers will spend the night at Glasgow, leaving tomorrow morning on the return journey by way of Blackpool, Manchester, Bristol, Southampton and Lympne to Brooklands race tracks, on the outskirts of London.

One Woman Pilot

Of the entries 30 of the machines were of the "private owned" class, including 14 De Haviland "Moths", of the type purchased by Miss Amelia Earhart when she was in England after her trans-Atlantic flight.

The woman pilot is Miss W. E. Spooner, who made her first appearance as a racing pilot.

Flight Lieutenant F. L. Luxmore, flying an Avro-Napier machine named "Avenger", was the favorite. He is handling the fastest machine in the contest and is expected to cover the 1,069 1-2 miles in about five hours actual flying time.

For the first time in the history of the race a helicopter type of machine is participating. It is the invention of Senor De Cierves, a Spaniard, from whom it is acquired by the British air ministry.

FLYERS ESCAPE ARCTIC DEATH

Three motion picture men, Jack Robertson, Charlie Clarke and Russell Merrill, know what men wrecked in the polar regions have suffered, because they have just returned to civilization after days of isolation in the Arctic, near Barrow, Alaska, where they had flown to obtain "shots" of the polar regions. Above, Clarke and Robertson and their stranded plane which was found after they and Merrill had been rescued from the wastes into which they had wandered after leaving the plane.

TERRIFIC RAIN STORM DELUGES THIS DISTRICT; MUCH DAMAGE DONE

are being repaired as rapidly as possible.

The Neshannock Narrows are reported damaged. The hill road from the paper mill to Cascade street is reported blocked. At Wilmington avenue it was reported that water was washing into cellars.

Traffic Tied Up

All traffic in the business section of the city, as well as elsewhere, was tied up until the storm was over. Cars stopped in the street until the worst of the rain had abated. Many were stalled. Those machines which kept on running resembled snow plows, the water swirling over their radiators.

No breaks occurred in the electric light and power service.

In the country districts all hay that had been cut is totally ruined, according to County Agent H. R. McCulloch. Even that which still is standing is badly damaged, and the county agent doubts if much of it can be used.

The wheat in the low spots of the county is also damaged, but since the crop was light the loss will not be great, the county agent states.

This morning it was rumored about the city that an air mail plane had crashed in the vicinity of New Castle. Informants placed the fall in various places, but no report of the accident has been received by the police department. At the police station the New York-Chicago air mail schedule is not known, but it is doubted if a plane would be in this section of the country at the time of the storm.

Pennsy Railroad Affected

According to a report given out this morning at the divisional offices of the Pennsylvania railroad, several sections of the company's property were either blocked, damaged to some extent, or both, by the cloudburst that struck this vicinity Thursday night.

All of the tracks on the division just below the local West Side station, at a point called Black bridge, were smothered under three feet of water and debris when the water of a storm sewer nearby swept over its banks and inundated the area. One east bound freight was delayed by the washout for a period of 10 hours while others were hampered in their progress to some extent. No passenger trains were delayed as one of the tracks had been cleared and was used for both west and east bound travel.

Storm Local

Early this morning work crews were endeavoring to remove the blockade, and had cleared the east bound track by 9:30 a. m. Others were cleared shortly afterwards. Caution was exercised by the train crews while passing over the area, as some of the tracks were washed out of their original shape, and were to be replaced later.

Officials of the railroad also announced that some damage had been done to the tracks of the company on the Bessemer branch, at a place near Gilmore's Crossing. About 500 feet of tracks was washed out there, but it was expected that the road would be restored to normal shape again in three hours.

The officials also state that the storm was local and was not so severe in other sections of the division. Rain was noticed by train crews in other sections but not to such an extent as it was here.

Big Run Floods Plant

Water flooded buildings of the National Radiator Co. of East Washington street last night and impaired the plant to such an extent that operations cannot be resumed until Monday.

Big Run which lies at the rear of the plant flooded to a level of three feet above its highest point and water from East Washington street drained down the hill forcing its way through the Radiator plant.

A foot of water filled the plant where the machinery is located at one time and crept on through, covering the offices in the front part of the building.

A hundred men are laboring today in an attempt to clean up the debris that was carried in, and to reshape the machinery and tools, to get ready for operations.

According to the statement of the superintendent this morning, it is thought that nothing is totally ruined and that all will be repaired and ready for operations again Monday.

Firemen In Rescue Work

Early in the evening, Fire Chief Charles H. Lynn and several of his assistants were called into "Snakes Rest," where they found that the water had come into houses four or five feet deep. They waded into the house of Fred Lillo of 421 West Lincoln avenue, and rescued the husband, his wife, and seven small children. George Harper, Perry McFarlan and Andy Perry accompanied the fire chief. At the home of John Foster of 426 Wood street, the firemen rescued a woman and her two children.

The reason for the flood in the Snakes Rest district is attributed by Chief Lynn to a clogged sewer at the Erie railroad tracks. None of the families were in immediate danger, stated Chief Lynn, but had their been another heavy thundergust, considerable damage would probably have been done, both to life and property.

At number 6 fire station on the west side, the torrents took a bridge out of the playground, and washed it down the hill. In fireman George Rae's front yard this morning there are three feet of gravel and sand. The water also entered Mr. Rae's kitchen.

Grant Street Building Damaged

The building occupied by the Penn Battery Shop on the corner of West Grant and Alma streets was almost undermined last night by the torrents of water that struck it when the sewer just a few feet away became clogged.

The first floor of the building is constructed of cement blocks, the entire front of which was washed away, leaving the upper wooden story sitting precariously on a three wall foundation?

The upper story of the building which is used as a residence by James Walker was not touched by the water. Last night in the heart of the flood the Walker family moved such belongings out as they deemed essential when the building was threatened with destruction

At the rear of the building some thirty truck loads of sand of the C. E. Miller Cement Products Co. was washed away.

For about two hours nearly three feet of water covered the street at the intersection of Alma, State and Grant streets and traffic was at a standstill until nearly 1:30 this morning.

Storm Aftermath

At the B. R. and P. railroad crossing just east of Adams and Butler avenue, the water was several feet deep. For two hours or more automobiles kept stalling as they tried to negotiate the young river and a truck was placed there to pull cars through.

On Pennsylvania avenue Big Run reached out and gobbled a handful or two of the avenue. At the end of the paving the run swirled into the street and traffic there this mornig was dangerous.

Traffic down Grant street was impossible. Cars coming in the Youngstown road were detoured around the West Side and even then it was difficult to get through.

In the Snakes Rest district the fire department was called and many people were removed from their homes. The daye of 1913 seemed to be back.

On South Mill street this morning a contractor could get a lot of sand and gravel very reasonably. At Lutton and Mill streets tons of slit, gravel, sand and small stones were washed down and it required a lot of trucking to get it all away.

Out along the Wilmington road several trees were torn out. Cars were stalled and one car missed a turn entirely and came to rest in a convenient ditch.

Street car service just "wasn't" on the South Side for about two hours. Street cars are made to run on rails and when a mountain of debris confronts them the best thing to do is to quit until the wrecking crew gets along.

Water overflowed the curbs at Washington and Mercer street. Automobiles which were not stalled ran through the torrent which poured through Washington street. A big box which was carried down the street was struck by automobiles.

Some automobilists used as much caution as a dog devouring meat. They rode fast through the main street splashing spectators who stood in doorways. Left hand turns were made at numerous corners.

"I've never carried an umbrella or wore a raincoat in my life and I've been on the road many, many years" said a salesman at the Leslie, "but I'm convinced it is time to get one" he told other salesmen clustered in the doorway.

Patrons of the theaters were marooned under the canopies until their husbands or escorts came to the rescue of ladies with automobiles and in some instances those girls who didn't have a fellow weren't backward in accepting a ride home.

Bathing suits were in evidence along Atlantic avenue. Near Oakland dirt and rock was washed into Atlantic avenue and at Oakland a ton of big cobblestones covered the highway. There were no red lights placed and automobiles ploughed through.

At Mahoning and Atlantic avenue a swirling river which came down alongside the school house swept tons of stone and dirt into the highway. Men in bathing suits worked feverishly to remove some of it but couldn't keep pace.

Street car service was interrupted and according to some it was impossible to journey south through South Mill street as it was the South Mill street river instead of street. Some men took off their shoes, stockings, rolled trousers and walked.

It is reported that it was impossible for automobiles to climb the state street hill as the torrent which dashed madly down the hill was too swift and voluminous. The Highland avenue hill also was a stream but automobiles could get up the hill.

It was a strange sight to see boxes, boards and other debris floating in Washington street last night. In fact there was more water in the main thoroughfare last night than since 1913 when the big flood was here.

One lady who simply had to get home last night and couldn't get a taxicab walked out into the rain and befor she could ge on the car was dripping wet. However she didn't seem to mind it. There was no surplus of umbrellas in the vicinity.

Big Run was on a rampage last night. The lowland on both sides of it out on the Butler road, owned by Senator George T. Weingartner was flooded for about two hundred yards wide. A small bridge on the Weingartner estate was washed away, and and for a time it was feared that the peony and iris gardens operated by Robert A. Weingartner had been destroyed. This morning showed some damage but not as serious as was first hought.

Reports were current that a mail plane had been forced down somewhere in this vicinity, but these could not be verified at the postoffice.

Water in the Neshannock and Shenango rose rapidly but did not reach a stage high enough to create a flood situation from that source.

At East street and Neshannock avenue there was a veritable torrent. Water swept around the corner into Neshannock avenue and the thoroughfare was flooded to the top of the curbs.

East Washington street hill also came in for its share of the flood although it appears that the heaviest rainfall was in the west and north sides of the city.

From all reports the greatest rainfall must have come in the watershed of Big run. It seems that Big run reached heights never before attained and this in the space of an hour or so. It is rare that flooded conditions occur in Big run.

State highway employes are also kept on the jump today, repairing damage done to the highways by mud and sand being washed over them from side roads, and by washouts along the concrete highways.

East Washington street between the east side station and Croton avenue proved almost impassable for autos last night, because of the high water. Seven cars were stalled at one time within a few feet of each other in that area.

Auto buses were substituted to the seventh ward last night, when street car service was tied up because of the covering of the tracks on South Mill street.

Trucks Continue In Early Hours

Police Get Complaints From Residents Of Sheridan Avenue And Investigate

Sheridan avenue seems to like to sleep late. This morning, complainints about the noise made by the trucks which are hauling dirt from the steam shovel on Albert street were made to the police department. Officer Augostine investigated.

The trucks, it seems, were running without mufflers. Officer Augostine finds that there are no heavy trucks made which have mufflers. And the trucks were no more noisy than other trucks. Nothing can be done about it. Trucks are trucks, and the dirt must be removed.

Science Plans Eradication Of White Plague

By GEORGE L. SCOTT.
International News Service Staff Correspondent

PORTLAND, Ore., July 20.—Those who toil with the microscope and test tubes in a ceaseless struggle to overcome the ravages of the white plague" are being slowly rewarded with success for their efforts and today science is looking at the disease as a "curable thing" according to Dr. H. J. Corper, chairman of the pathological section of the National Tuberculosis association.

Dr. Corper in an interview here gave a message of hope to the thousands now afflicted with the malady. "The reports of research work now in progress point hopefully to control of this problem," he said.

"Today we are looking at the disease as a curable thing. Its mortality toll is decreasing. We know tubercle bacilli can be destroyed and that tuberculosis in favorable cases can be arrested.

Seek Eradication.

"Science is working toward eradication of tuberculosis. It will come by first appreciating that the disease is curable and then striking at the heart of the germ both in and outside the body. The campaign against tuberculosis has two fundamental aims: The destruction of bacillus at its source and the building up of the health of the individual.

"We have passed historically speaking, through the period when tuberculosis was believed to be an always fatal and hopeless disease. Today we are concerned more with the healing processes, their mechanisms and how we can bring the balance to bear on this side of the equation.

"Studies on the protein fraction have provided a purified protein tuberculin faction which has been studied with gratifying results and will soon be available for use to replace the former impure old tuberculin.

Near a Solution.

"The separation of definite fat fractions from the human tubercle bacillus have led to the isolation of the saturated fatty acid unit possessing the property of rapidly stimulating the multiplication of the monocyte in which the tubercle basillus lives during its early residence in the body.

"Later studies indicate that preliminary treatment with this fraction greatly augments the rapidity with which tuberculosis develops in certain animals. If this is true" he concluded, "it may be assumed the opposite is true and it may be we are on the threshold of our final journey."

Soviet Doctors Kill Eight Patients With Poison Chloroform

(International News Service)

MINSK, Russia, July 20.—Poisoned chloroform administered by amateur doctors killed eight patients in three weeks at the Proskenov village hospital. The health department's suspicions were aroused only after repeated deaths following slight operations.

Investigation disclosed that the regular doctors rarely reported for duty at the hospital. Patients were treated by students and nurses and even by fellow patients dressed up in the doctors' white uniforms. Members of the staff had only a vague knowledge of chemistry and the compounding of prescriptions, and frequently when the doctors did appear and order certain drugs, pure water containing a little coloring matter was administered.

Only the eight deaths from bad anaesthetic have been directly traced, but it is believed that the unusually high death rate in the hospital during recent months is the result of frequent similar poisoning and neglect.

Scientist Offers Economic Remedies For Ills Of Farm

(International News Service)

BERKELEY, Calif., July 20.—Decreasing production by reducing acreage.

Decreasing competition from abroad by tariff.

Decreasing production costs to meet the lower price levels.

These are the four remedies suggested today by Professor B. H. Crocheron, director of agricultural extension service in the University of California, for the cure of rural ills.

"Most people, however, don't take remedies," he says, until they are sick.

They hope that the weather will change and that they will feel better tomorrow. Our agriculture is not so sick but that many folks are merely 'enjoying bad health'."

Of one or another of these remedies advocates abound. Amongst them all the farmer is likely to be confused and he may be so bewildered by the noise that he will think something or other is being done. As a matter of fact, Professor Crocheron explains, "it's mostly talk and little medicine."

BOY IS INJURED; STRUCK BY AUTO

Paul Tuney, aged five, of West Grant street, suffered lacerations about the head when he was struck by the car of Edward Ramsey of 3547 Nielson avenue, Youngstown, O., while playing on West Grant street early Thursday afternoon.

The lad was dodging around a parked car when the accident happened. He was taken to the Shenango Valley hospital by Mr. Ramsey, where it was learned that his condition was not serious.

SUMMON AUTO DRIVERS FOR FAILURE TO STOP WHERE SIGNS DESIGNATE

There are a number of automobile drivers in New Castle who will have the unusual experience of opening a letter today and find that it comes from the New Castle police department, summoning them to appear at the station for violating stop signs which are placed about the city.

Officer Charlie Augustine, the originator of the plan, explains it to a representative of The News: "You see, I cannot be everywhere at once, and when they do see me beside a sign, they are sure to stop. But now I have it fixed so that they do not see me. They do not know that they are being watched."

By this method, it is expected to force automobile drivers to be more careful at marked intersections.

Seabrook Tells Of Ceremony To Join Voodooism

By CHARLES A. SMITH,
International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, July 20.—Telling of being initiated into the mysteries of Voodooism, William B. Seabrook, and American newspaper writer, arrived in London bearing strange tales of this magic cult practiced in the Negro republic of Haiti, West Indies.

Seabrook found Voodooism to be a mixture of African god-worship and the devout Christianity of the Middle Ages.

"It was six months before I was able to get an insight into Voodoo," Seabrook told International News Service. "The people are suspicious of any inquiry, fearing that an effort is to be made to stamp out their religion or to make a sensation out of it.

Anointed Goat

"When I was initiated red ribbons were twined round the horns of a little goat, and its hoofs were anointed. The priest then sat down before it, and a symbol was traced on its forehead with white flour and the blood of doves. Its throat was cut and three times I drank the blood.

"The chief god is represented by a serpent. There is a god to protect houses, another to care for animals; there are gods of the sea, fresh water, and the god of gates, crossroads and fields is represented by an old farmer with a pipe in his mouth.

"After a death a bucket of water is placed near the body and efforts are made to drive the evil spirits of the dead into the water, which is then thrown into the soil.

The Death Curse

"To make a death curse against anybody the followers of the cult obtain a nail paring or piece of hair of the victim or a fragment of clothing which has been next his skin. They then place this on a handkerchief. They believe that as the substance decays so will the person from whom it came.

"They take care that the victim knows what is being done, so that it preys on his mind. Sometimes he makes frantic searches to find the handkerchief and dies from exhaustion; at others he is found at the foot of a cliff, apparently having committed suicide.

America Is Not Hopeless, Says Krishnamurti

(International News Service)

PARIS, July 20.—"There is still hope for America," declared Krishnamurti, young Hindu Messiah when he arrived in Paris after his recent tour abroad. "She really isn't as bad as I once imagined her and I feel certain the country will soon assume her responsibility and recognize her great mission."

The thirty-year-old mystic attracted one of the greatest crowds that has ever gathered together in the French capital when he spoke at the large Salle Pleyel before an audience of many types.

"Enjoy life to the fullest measure; live nobly and in beauty," he told his hearers who were looking for something sensational. "One must not scorn life but magnify it to a great degree.

"Religion, as I understand it, is the frozen thought of men out of which he builds temples. Sets of beliefs and dogmas are unnecessary to life. Creeds and religions have nothing to do with the inner self—the understanding of life which is essential to happiness.

"You can't prohibit people anything. It is ridiculous. I don't believe in it. Everyone—even Americans—must be allowed complete free range and sooner or later they will come to the idea of clean living and purity of conduct as the only solution to happiness."

Three triplet sisters stepped over a carpet of silver sand to be married at the little village church in Boom, near Antwerp. Born on the same day twenty-one years ago, they were also married on the same day.

It was Josephine, Philomene and Maria Boeymans who wrote this unusual chapter in Boom's uneventful history. The triplets, who have nine brothers and sisters living, are daughters of working class parents. Their husbands are laboring men.

Celebrate Birth Of Electric Cars

Suburb Of Berlin Had First Street Railway In World 47 Years Ago

(International News Service)

BERLIN, July 20.—The celebration by Lichterfelde, a suburb of Berlin, of its 50th anniversary recalls the fact that it can, in 1931, celebrate another semicentennial. The first electric street railway in the world was operated here 47 years ago.

But the German inventor Werner Siemens succeeded in constructing an electric locomotive which drew small cars at the dizzy speed of more than four miles an hour at the Berlin Trade Exposition of 1879. A year later he began building a narrow-guage railway for the then existing cadet school in Lichterfelde. A power-plant and electric street cars were constructed.

The work was completed in 1881. The current was transmitted through a third rail; not until several years later did Siemens adopt the overhead wire and trolley. The current for this first railway was of 160 volts, each car had 26 seats and reached a speed of more than 12 miles an hour. This line was in operation until 1896.

It's just the principle of the thing. If the minimum speed limit was 45 miles, people would howl for liberty to go slow.—Santa Barbara Daily News.

The Erie and Ashtabula division band of the Pennsylvania railroad, composed of local employes of the company, will go to Canton, O., on Tuesday, July 24, to play at the annual outing of the Mutual Benefit Association of the company, made up of Pennsylvania railroad employes.

The band also expects to make a trip to Kennywood Park, Pittsburgh, on Thursday, July 26, where they will furnish music for another group of the Mutual Benefit Association's members, who will picnic there.

Mail Planes Use Much Gas And Oil

Air Mail Companies Are Using 60,260 Gallons Of Gasoline A Day

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, July 20.—Air mail planes, because of the increased mileage being flown, are becoming large consumers of gasoline and oil, and their consumption is indicative of supplies to be required by this rapidly growing industry, according to figures gathered by the American Air Transport Association today.

In flying 23,000 miles a day over 21 routes with an average of three tons of mail a day, exclusive of express and passengers, the air mail companies are using 60,260 gallons a day and 3,330 gallons of oil.

Recent testing showed that the average requirement of mail planes is a consumption of .262 gallons of gas and .014 gallons of oil per mile.

Sleeping Giant Adds More Human Victims To Ancient Score

(International News Service)

NEW HAVEN, Conn., July 20.—The Sleeping Giant has added two more human victims to his score. The Sleeping Giant is a high hill range on the outskirts of New Haven that in outline resembles a recumbent man.

Since the days when the first settlers of Connecticut, and the Dutch before them, coasted Long Island Sound the Sleeping Giant has been a landmark, and today the passengers on Sound steamers casually observe and sometimes comment on the strange feature of the Connecticut skyline as their boats pass.

Efforts, under way for years, had finally acquired part of the Giant for a state park, but the head, a separate peak called Mount Carmel, has been pecked at for a decade by a trap rock concern. Apparently nothing could be done to save the Giant's head. Suddenly, as two hundred men were laboring on the sides of the head on a humid summer afternoon, the Giant seemed to shake his head and tons of rock rushed down, burying one man so his body was not recovered for days, killing another by flinging him over a precipice, and injuring scores.

Panic-striken workers, fled the place in horror and could not be induced to return to seek their companion's body. Then someone recalled ancient legends concerning the Sleeping Giant that hadn't been thought of for years, and recounted past scores against the Giant. But no theory has been raised to account for the sudden latest avalanche.

INDIAN WARFARE HOT AS "CHIEFS" FIGHT IN LONDON

By J. KINGSBURY SMITH
International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON July, 20.—In London, far from the wide open spaces of the once wild west, an Indian warfare has broken out.

Running Deer, chief of all the Mohawk tribes, better known as Os-Ke-Non-Ton, is in open rebellion against Big Chief White Horse Eagle, of the Osage tribe, who claims to be the paramount chief of all North American Indians.

Not with tomahawks and terrifying war cries are these two Chiefs battling, no, for they have become too civilized for that. But their feud is just as bitter as if they were leading a thousand warriors against each other. It is a battle of words. Malicious, indignant words.

Denounces Chief

Running Deer denounces Big Chief White Horse Eagle's claim to the title of paramount chief, and laughs at the suggestion that he is 107 years of age.

"Who ever heard of a horse eagle," sarcastically declares Chief Running Deer. I don't even believe he is an Indian. Indians do not make such foolish mistakes.

"Last winter White Horse Eagle was in New York making foolish women and girls queens and princesses of Indian tribes. The 400 Indians in New York protested.

"Mr. Charles H. Burke, the United States Commissioner of Indian Affairs, could not trace White Horse Eagle, and said he had no authority to make chiefs."

Emphatically denying the statements made by Chief Running Deer, which he declared emanated from a "crooked tongue," White Horse Eagle, looking marvellously preserved for his years related how he became paramount chief.

"I was made Chief of all the Indians 87 years ago on Lookout Mountain, Colorado. I remember sitting on my spotted pony with my hands over my eyes, gazing over the lowlands at the wagon trains making their way westward.

Caught Wild Horses

"My father was Chief Wak-Cha-Ya. I used to chase wild horses, and I could run faster than they. Always when I caught a wild horse it was a white one. I would tame it in an hour and bring it back to the tribe. That is how I got the name of White Horse."

Then branding as a lie the statement that he had sold titles in New York, the aged Chief continued, "As for the title of Eagle, I earned that by catching an American bald eagle and stripping its feathers out.

Seeks Life's Secret

Seeking a scientific key to long life, Dr. Raymond Pearl, director of the Institute for Biological Research of Johns Hopkins university, has gone to those who have lived long for his facts. For the past six years he has gathered the life histories of nearly 1,000 persons between the ages of 95 and 111 years of age. He believes these persons may be regarded as experts in the art of living.

Collegiate Flivvers With Bad Mottoes Banned By Denver

(International News Service)

DENVER, July 20.—Chief of Police R. Fred Reed has decided that the "collegiate flivver" must leave the streets of Denver if it is emblazoned with any suggestive mottoes.

The chief said he could overlook some of the minor wisecracks and wouldn't even inquire as to the source of red lanterns that are to be found on the back of many a "collegiate four". It has been rumored around fraternity houses that the highway department of Denver is minus a few of its warning signs, and according to some fraternity men the tail light on the "bluderbusses" might have once adorned some innocent culvert.

Indications are that the townspeople's morals are to be protected from the ever flaming collegiate circle, which generally is a group of high school students.

Recently a patrolman found a crowd of over 100 persons inspecting a delapidated car of the class of '16 with many suggestive slogans and drawings on it. He hailed the car and sent it to the city garage.

When the boy owners, high school youths from Los Angeles, appeared to say that the car was theirs and that they wanted it, Deputy Chief of Police Williams lectured them severely, made them clean up the car and then the youths departed for parts unknown.

London Preacher Uses Social Hour For His Service

(International News Service)

LONDON, July 20.—A novel form of church service, where the parishioners gather on the rectory lawn and men smoke while women mind their babies, has been instituted with marked success at Eastwell, Kent.

"The service has proved very satisfactory." Canon Halloran, who inaugurated the scheme, declared. "There is a lovely view from the lawn, and the congregation made itself comfortable in chairs or on rugs spread on the ground.

"We sing hymns to the accompaniment of a harmonium, and every one is as comfortable as possible. A great many passing motorists stop to listen to the service.

"Women who have stayed away from church because they have to mind their babies can bring the kiddies along, perambulators and all."

Automobiles Take Jobs From Camels

(International News Service)

CAIRO, July 20.—A fleet of American automobiles, passing through desert and sleepy Oriental towns to the sound of klaxon and tumultuous music are ousting the leisurely camel, moving reflectively on his way, his horizon bounded by the tail of the camel in front.

In the latest American "invasion" undertaken to introduce American automobiles of various well-known makes on the ancient highways, was a caravan carrying no merchandise, being itself for sale. So successful has this travelling showroom been that 61 cars were sold in three days.

There are customers in the villagers who are somewhat difficult to please. There was recently the rather piquant incident of the peasant who complained because his automobile could not carry more than six passengers on the fenders and hardly five sheep on the top. The representative promised that man to do his best with the factory, and try and persuade them to alter the design of the car in order to meet these quite natural requirements.

DAUGHERTY HAS NARROW ESCAPES

Legless And One-Armed Plane Pilot Arrives At Passaic, N. J.

(International News Service)

PASSAIC, N. J., July 20.—Morris R. "Dinger" Daugherty, legless and one-armed airplane pilot, flying from his home in New Martinsville, W. Va., to Roosevelt field, N. Y., was resting here today after getting lost several times and being forced down in Pennsylvania, New Jersey and on Long Island. Miraculously he escaped injury.

Daugherty, who was flying a standard biplane with an OX5 motor, is said to be planning a trans-Atlantic flight to Rome in another plane. He is county assessor of Wetzler county, West Virginia, and is being backed in his flight by friends in that state. He lost both legs and right arm in a railroad accident. When he arrived here he had only $1.

While on his flight to Roosevelt field Daugherty became lost in the fog and being nearly out of gas, landed on a public golf course at Newark, N. J. He struck two trees, in landing, and golf players scattered.

Fortunately one of the golf players was Capt. Dennis Rooke of Australia, who broke the world's record for a flight in a light airplane when last year he flew 7,000 miles from Croydon airdrome, England, to Calcutta in several stages. Rooke repaired the motor of Daugherty's plane and the crippled aviator started for Roosevelt field.

Daugherty was forced down again on Long Island, however. Somehow he got over New Jersey again, and finally landed at the Passaic airport.

Dr. Work is the new Republican chairman. Democrats hope he will not overwork himself.

Man Confesses To Robbing Victim, But Disclaims Killing

(International News Service)

MINEOLA, N. Y., July 20.—Anthony D'Apolito, held as a material witness in the murder of William F. Gilbride, contractor, in an alleged confession made public by police Thursday accused his "silent partner", Joseph Ustica, a World war veteran, of committing the crime.

According to police, D'Apolito broke down under their grilling. He is said to have admitted robbing Gilbride after Ustica struck the victim on the head with a rolling pin in the prisoners' spaghetti house at Freeport, N. Y.

With D'Apolito and Ustica, Mrs. Lucille McDermott, estranged wife of a Long Island police sergeant, was held as a material witness to the crime.

A moving picture version of the crime will be flashed on a screen in the court room when the case comes up for trial, according to District Attorney Elvin N. Edwards.

DRIVER KILLED IN CAR CRASH

Roadster Caught Between Trolley And Truck Near Ambridge

AMBRIDGE, Pa., July 20.—Robert Johnson, 23, was killed instantly and John Lewis, 22, both of Conway, cut and bruised Thursday afternoon when the automobile which Johnson was driving was trapped between a street car and a truck and crashed into the truck at the Legionville bridge, about two miles north of here.

The two youths were en route to Fair Oaks to go in swimming. Johnson had speeded up to pass the street car, Ambridge bound; and believed the truck, owned by Scott Bros., Pittsburgh, was moving.

When trapped he attempted to turn off the road. The momentum of the car threw it against the tail gate of the truck. The top of the roadster was ripped off by the gate and Johnson's skull was factured.

The driver, Frank Lawther, 102 Alpine avenue, Pittsburgh, who had stopped the truck to eat his lunch, summoned assistance.

Prisoner Found In Wrong Cell

Sing Sing Prisoner In Wrong Cell Causes All-Night Search

(International News Service)

OSSINING, N. Y., July 20. — The search for Harold Fullam, 20, a New Yorker, who was reported A. W. O. L. at Sing Sing prison here, during the execution last night of Joseph Lefkowitz, 30, ended today with the finding of Fullam in the wrong cell.

Fullam who is serving a fifteen to twenty year sentence for manslaughter, was found by Warden Lewis E. Lawes and a squad of prison keepers after a search which lasted into the early hours of the morning. Warden Lawes offered the explanation that when the prisoners were returning to their cells last evening after a period of recreation Fullam accidentally walked into the wrong cell.

Nightly Taps At Brule River Camp Gets Goat Of Secret Service Chief

(International News Service)

SUPERIOR, Wis., July 20.—Taps, that soul-gripping dirge of the bugle, is both beautiful and inspiring in the opinion of Dick Jervis, handsome chief of the White House secret service, but taps as a steady nightly diet doesn't appeal to his civilian senses.

Dick's experience with the final call of the bugle has been extensive—but in a limited field. For 20 years he has guarded presidents and accompanied them to funerals and other solemn rituals where the doleful call figured. Many is the time he has stood over an open grave and heard the long, clear notes of taps and the final volley of rifle fire.

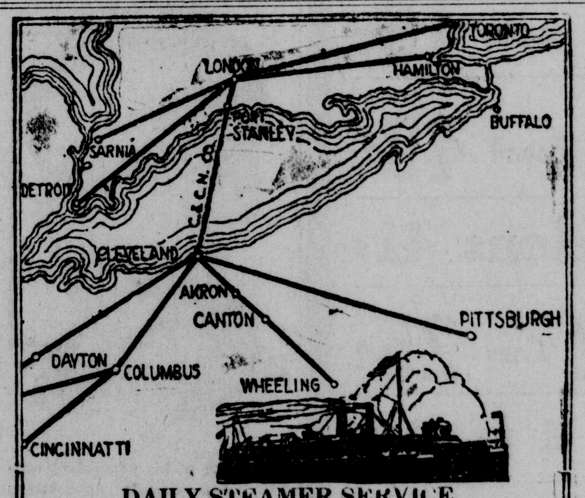

But this summer, buried in the woods of Wisconsin by the side of the Brule river, Chief Jervis is experiencing for the first time the business of hearing it nightly, for this his first time to have lived in an army camp.

"Here we are, way out in the woods," says the boss of the White House detail, "just buried. Pitch black except for what little light comes from the scattered tents. Nothing to do except read or play bridge for amusement.

"And then comes that wail. When taps was sounded over the Unknown Soldier back in 1922 I thought I never heard anything so inspiring. When it comes through the trees and the night out here, though, it's eerie.

"Why can't the army go to bed to something a little more cheerful and save taps for funerals?"

This Local Man Offering Praise For New Konjola

Says That This Medicine Relieved Him Of Kidney And Stomach Suffering.

MR. NEWTON A. GREEN
Seavy Photo

Konjola has already been a blessing to hundreds of people in New Castle and nearby towns. It has made men and women, in all walks of life, happy with the knowledge that life for them will no longer be one gloomy day after the other, suffering terrible miseries, but has given them the joy of living, by banishing the common ailments of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels.

One report after the other is being received by the Konjola Man at the Love and Megown drug store, 204 East Washington street, this city, from sufferers who have already been relieved of their health troubles. For instance, Mr. Newton A. Green, 307 Fern street, New Castle, made the following statement:

"I am entirely relieved of the terrible miseries of stomach and kidney trouble since I have completed a treatment of Konjola", said Mr. Green. "It was the first medicine to help me and I feel that such a remedy should be indorsed to the public.

"For a long time I have been in a completely rundown condition and although I tried all kinds of medicine I never could find one that would give me any relief. I suffered almost all the day from lumbago and it was almost impossible for me to do my work because of the severe pains. But the worst trouble was with my stomach which caused me misery after every meal. Large quantities of gas formed after I ate the least bit of food. I was told this was brought on by constipation and even the strongest laxatives failed to help me. During the night I would have to rise several times because of weak kidneys and all day I had awful headaches that were due to a sluggish liver. I was steadily losing in weight and felt bad all the time.

"I noticed in the papers that Konjola was recommended by many local people for such disorders as mine and I finally made up my mind to give this medicine a trial. The first two bottles gave me more relief than all the medicine I had taken. The new feelings of health that came over me surprised me and I didn't know what to make of it. The pains in my back from lumbago disappeared and I could do my work without suffering the least bit. As I continued with the treatment my stomach got better until finally I was able to eat anything that I wanted without the least bad result afterward. Konjola regulated my bowels and gave me free movement every day. My kidneys are stronger and I never have to get up during the night, and all the liver trouble is gone. Konjola has helped me in every way and I am feeling better than I have in many years.

"My wife also has been helped by this medicine and we both think it is a blessing to our home. We recommend it every chance we get.

The Konjola Man is at the Love and Megown drug store, 204 East Washington street, New Castle, where he is daily meeting the public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy.

Believe Girl Entitled To Hero Award

Persons interested are planning to bring before the Carnegie Hero Award Commission, the feats of Miss Edna Winters of McCleary avenue, this city, who has saved three persons from drowning in the Shenango river this summer.

The latest rescue was one that should entitle her to recognition, they say. Miss Winters plunged into the swollen Shenango and brought a young girl safely to shore, who had gone down in the deep water, and from all indications was beyond rescue efforts.

Miss Winters has performed heroically in each rescue attributed to her the friends declare, and they think her bravery should be recognized.

Vacation Books Are Suggested At City Library

For those who take their vacations in the woods and wish to take books on long hikes, they must be carefully chosen, is the opinion of the librarians of the New Casite Public Library. The book must be light in weight, and it also must be thought of with the greatest care, for the wrong book adds pounds to one's load.

The Magic Carpet is a book for travelers, by Mrs. Waldo Richards. The Oxford Book of Verse is a miscellaneous collection, easily carried. And Jessie Rittenhouse has done a real service to poetry lovers and travelers in her three little books on American verse.

All of these books are in the library.

Woman's Body Is Found In River

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, July 20.—The body of a girl taken from the North river was identified today as that of Miss Virginia Drew, 35, an artist, who had disapepared from her parents' home Sunday.

Death was believed due to drowning although the body was bruised and there was blood on the face.

Endeavoring to find an explanation of the young woman's death police today were seeking Maxwell Bodenheim, novelist, who had been helping her in some literary work according to her family. Bodenheim was not in his apartment and it was said that he had not been seen there since last Tuesday.

It was suggested by friends of Miss Drew who had been much interested in reincarnation that she had taken her life and police wished to question Bodenheim in the belief that he had discussed Miss Drew's philosophy with her and might be able to throw some light on the tragedy.

Bodenheim is best known for his novel "Replenishing Jessica" which was attacked by John S. Sumner.

Slater Granted Complete Pardon In Murder Case

Move To Annul Conviction Of Oscar Slater For Murder Is Successful In Scotland

(International News Service)

EDINBURGH, Scotland, July 20.—One of the most sensational murder cases in British history became a closed incident today when the Scottish courts quashed the conviction of Oscar Slater, who was released from prison last November after serving nearly 18 years for killing Miss Marion Gilchrist, an aged Glasgow woman. The Slater affair was compared by some to the Sacco-Vanzetti case in the United States. Although released from the penitentiary, the conviction against Slater continued to stand until today.

Slater was arrested in New York in December, 1908, as he stepped from the liner Lusitania. He waived extradition and returned to Scotland to stand trial. He was convicted largely on the evidence of three witnesses, one a young woman named Helen Lambie, who subsequently migrated to the United States, married and made her home in Peoria, Ill.

The Slater case was without precedence in British jurisprudence. He was found guilty and sentenced to death, but later the sentence was commuted to life imprisonment. After his release a movement was started to have even the conviction annulled. Many prominent persons, including Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, interested themselves in Slater's behalf.

New Sewer For Greenwood Ave.

Councilman Clayton Reeves today introduced an ordinance during council meeting at the City Building which provides for construction of a new sanitary sewer in Greenwood avenue from West North street to run 200 feet south. It was discovered recently that private sewers were too close to the surface of the street, and should a sewer become clogged it would necessitate the tearing up of Greenwood avenue, which is to be paved. The ordinance was sent to committee and reported out favorably.

Dubbed "Chapman"

Because of his nonchalant attitude and dapper appearance, Charles Crawford, 25, of New York City, has been dubbed the new "Gerald Chapman." Arrested in Newark, N. J., by police, who surrounded him with drawn guns, Crawford maintained the air of a man being done an injustice. According to police Crawford was wanted in New York in connection with the shooting of Edwin Jerge, his onetime close friend. Police say the shooting was the result of Jerge's posing as a federal dope agent and "shaking down" dope peddlers for bribes.

"As Good As GOODYEAR"

To my notion it can't be, but how much do you think this statement has cost the tire buying public? I say plenty.
Perhaps you have used Goodyears or possibly your car, when new, was equipped with Goodyears. When new tires were needed, you took a chance on the "just as good" kind.
I am continually impressed with this loss, because, nearly every day one or more customers tell me of their experience with tires claimed to be as good as Goodyear.
How often do you hear—Goodyear is a good tire—but—? The price may be lower or higher. Even with the local anaesthetic of special sale, discount or long trades, the mileage cost is usually high, compared with Goodyear.

Uniform Value

Goodyear tires are the standard of tire values. They are not high priced and offer a selection of types in all sizes to meet every requirement of the motorist.
The lowest priced Goodyear may give mileage equal to or greater than many tires priced higher.

HERE THEY ARE!

Goodyear All Weather — The world's greatest tire.

Traffic Vibrations Menace Buildings Of Old London

(International News Service)

LONDON, July 20.—Experts are alarmed at the peril caused by traffic vibration to some of London's famous buildings and a thorough survey of the central area has been ordered.

The Nelson column and the National Gallery in Trafalgar-Square, St. Paul's Cathedral, Westminster Abbey and the law courts are typical of the notable structures which are threatened.

Delicate instruments, which will register the slightest quiver due to the vibration caused by passing traffic will be installed in buildings and in the streets.

"The question of traffic vibration will come before the science committee of the Royal Institute of British Architects shortly," says H. V. Lanchester, a prominent architect and a vice president of the institute.

"The situation is undoubtedly serious, it has been brought to our notice several times, and the Central Hall accident when a boy was killed and seven other people injured by the fall of a ceiling, has brought matters to a head.

Strangely enough, it is not the old buildings which cause us worry, but those of new and modern design.

"Old buildings, loosely constructed, absorb most of the traffic vibration without any effect on the structure. It is the modern building of steel and concrete—a cast iron affair—that is such a dangerous conductor of vibration."

Officials from the Office of Works have had the Nelson Column under observation for some time. The gyratory traffic round the square and the vibration from the tubes which run underneath are believed to be causing it to vibrate.

The monument was designed originally to allow a sway of some inches under the force of wind pressure. It is thought that this sway has been increased by the street and underground traffic. An official at the Ministry of Health said:

"It is almost certain that some steps will have to be taken, both by the London County Council and the Ministry of Health.

Air Mail Planes Handle Wide Range Of Trade Shipments

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, July 20.—Day by day a wider diversity of commodities are going through the air in mail planes. In one month shipments out of Chicago included commodities ranging from bread and ice cream to pawn tickets and jewelry, and the air express carried a 317-pound casting needed by a firm in Wichita, Kansas.

The largest users of air express are film companies, then come the banks and bond houses, show figures gathered by the American Air Transport association. Next in order come jewelry shipments, then advertising agencies sending out copy for national distribution. A study of the shipping manifest of the air mail companies show that alert buyers scour the New York market for the latest in fashion, and each night the westbound plane from New York carries models of hats, gowns and lingerie.

There are spare parts for a threshing machine in Nebraska to save the payroll an idle crew would receive; a present from a forgetful husband who delayed purchase of friend wife's birthday gift until too late for the regular mail; a belated package for a traveler about to board a ship for a foreign port. Photographs of important news events, and so on through a wide range of shipments.

A Milwaukee manufacturer recently sold a cargo of locks in the New York market. By shipping via air, a thousand miles away, he put his locks down in New York so fast as his competitors could have delivered them from New Zealand. Shippers of oil from California to the Atlantic coast save thousands of dollars in interest by forwarding bills of lading via air. A consignment of flowers was flown to New York, so that they might arrive with the fresh bloom of California.

London Shops Use Dollars For Pounds

American Tourists Will Not Have To Jiggle With Shillings In England

LONDON, July 20.—American visitors to London this year will not have to juggle pounds and shillings when doing their shopping.

Most of the large shops display both English and American prices, later computed according to the rate of exchange.

Visitors from the states, as a consequence, are treated to an unexpected thrill by seeing goods marked $1.98 for example, but the London storekeeper has not yet awakened to the master-stroke of adding "Reduced from Two Dollars."

SHORT ROMANCES OF EVERYDAY LIFE

There's a Way

By MARGARET TAYLOR

"WILL-POWER," Mrs. Murray told Mr. Merton, "is what you lack, John. You must be masterful. Sweep her off her feet."

John Merton accepted this advice with the meekness which, as he himself was convinced, marred an otherwise adequate personality.

"I guess I really ought to assert myself," he conceded. "But Marigold doesn't seem to take me seriously. Of course, she's hardly more than a child, and—"

"She's a grown girl, plenty old enough to get married," interrupted Mrs. Murray firmly. "And, let me warn you, John, to make sure of her at once. Heaven knows I hate to say it of my own daughter, but Marigold is inclined to be flighty, and I've got my suspicions of that art-student boy friend of hers."

"Young Richard Bird, you mean? Barton Bird's nephew?"

"Yes, the worthless young scamp. Wouldn't go into business as his uncle wanted him to. Preferred to study painting—if he starved for it. He's likely to be hungry more than once, too, or I'm mistaken. If he's hoping to inherit the Bird money, he'll be disappointed. Barton Bird will cut him off without a penny, and it will serve him entirely right."

"But, if Marigold is—er—romantic over him?"

"The sooner she gets over it the better. And she'd be over it now, if you weren't so easy-going. We women, you know, are never entirely unsusceptible to a suitor who takes us by storm."

Encouraged now by Marigold's mother, "I'm calling tonight," he said. "Will Marigold be at home?"

"She will," promised Mrs. Murray in a tone that carried conviction. And, John, don't forget that what will solve this situation is a show of firmness."

Mr. Merton, hat in hand, paused at the door. His spirits were obviously improved. He straightened his well-padded shoulders.

"If will-power is requisite," he announced, "I shall display it," he smiled archly. "And, as a clinching argument, I shall have something new to offer Miss Marigold. No. No questions now. You shall see, and so shall your charming, if reluctant, daughter. I am not wholly unacquainted with feminine psycology."

Punctually at 8 o'clock, Mr. Merton arrived, and punctually at 8:05, grievously, though such an action irked her, Mrs. Murray excused herself from the parlor. Meaningfully, as she left the room, she caught Mr. Merton's eye. Significantly he returned her glance. Marigold, blonde bob bent over the radio knobs, appeared all unsuspecting, a slim and girlish figure much too inconsequential seriously to threaten the machinations of well meaning adult minds.

It was almost midnight when Mr. Merton departed. Mrs. Mrs. Murray, listening from her own chamber, heard Marigold's light footfalls trip rapidly bedwards. Modern mothers, accustomed to few confidences, have developed their intuitions. Mrs. Murray was perfectly certain that something of moment had happened. She could recognize it from the brisk and self-satisfied tread of Mr. Merton's homeward bound feet. She could sense it from the breathlessness of Marigold's flight to seclusion. She could feel it in the air. Well pleased with the thus-successful exercise of a maternal will, Mrs. Murray slept soundly.

Mr. Merton, calling next afternoon, had also apparently slept well. He too, had obviously found pleasure in the profits of will-power, however tardily developed. His chubby-faced smile faded only slightly when Mrs. Murray, not Marigold, answered the bell.

Mrs. Murray was not similarly cheerful. To the contrary, her eyes bore unmistakable evidence of recent tears.

Mr. Merton, surrendering his hat and stick, attempted bravely to be jovial.

"Oh, I say," he ventured, "are you all upset to have got yourself a brand new son-in-law?"

"It's terrible, terrible," moaned Mrs. Murray, "I don't know how I'll ever bear it."

Mr. Merton's features dropped to comic, semi-incredulous crestfallenness.

"But, my dear Mrs. Murray, I thought you wanted me . . ."

"You, yes but this black sheep, Dick Bird, never. Oh, just to think of it." Mrs. Murray wept afresh.

Mr. Merton struggled gamely with the incomprehensible.

"What's Richard Bird got to do with it?"

"Why surely you must know. You must have read—"

"Read what? All I know is that Marigold is going to marry me. At least—"

"Marry you? Mrs. Murray's voice was rising to the pitch of hysterics. "Look at this newspaper." She forced a crumpled sheet into Mr. Merton's pudgy hand.

Mr. Merton glanced once, loosened his collar, and adjusted his glasses. As he progressed through headlines, lead paragraph, and story, he wilted visibly.

"But it can't be true," he muttered finally.

"I'm afraid it is," sobbed Mrs Murray. "Marigold left me a note pinned to her pillow. Said she and her 'Dicky' would be married when I found it. Said they'd honeymoon in New York just as the paper tells."

"How could she?"

Mrs. Murray lifted a grief-ravaged face.

"That's just what I can't figure. She had no money and I'm sure that Bird boy was absolutely penniless, at least for the time being. He was joking just a day or two ago—imagine joking—about the fact that he'd lost his allowance, such as it is, in a poker game and would have to eat 'on' his room-mate for the rest of the month."

"The paper says she sold her ring," interposed Mr. Merton. "Listen to this." He read aloud.

"'They tried to make a child out of me,' the charming young bride told the Planet reporter who interviewed her in the honeymoon lovenest. "But I fooled them, I sold my ring for $200, and I just made Richard run away with me. No, we'll never regret it. No, I'm never going home, Richard has a job already, a good job, too, and we'll live right here in New York.'"

Mr. Merton grunted, "I guess that explains the money part of the elopement."

"No, it doesn't," Mrs. Murray snapped. "My daughter never owned a ring in her life that was worth $20, let alone $200."

Mr. Merton's face reddened painfully. "Er—I guess she did," he gulped. "I gave it to her last night, as—er—the argument I told you about. Best diamond in town," he added with forlorn pride.

"Why, the naughty, scheming child!"

"Oh, she tried to refuse at first. But I was masterful, just as you advised me."

"Then she accepted you?"

"Not exactly. But she took the ring. I assured her I wanted her to have it."

Mrs. Murray for once was silent.

In silence Mr. Merton took his things and in silence approached the door.

"It is useless," moaned Mrs. Murray in farewell, "to tell you how sorry I am. But perhaps, after all, you are better off without her."

Mr. Merton's mutter was unintelligible.

"Yes, it is just as well," concluded Mrs. Murray firmly. "She wasn't worthy of you. She's a wayful young woman—and willful."

Cruelty to Patriots.

"What is your opinion of aviation?"

"I don't know anything about it," answered Senator Sorghum. "But I'm afraid of it. If all the ovations are going to airmen, we statesmen may as well take off our coats and learn to fly."

ANOTHER SPRING

By CLYDE WELDON

PEGGY DURLAND was facing life as it is sometimes necessary to face it. She was looking upon it as a long road down which she must go until she was old—and go alone.

Only last year when the Spring came in she had thought of that same road as a wonderful highway that she and Eric would travel together. But now Eric had changed. During the last few months she had noticed the difference in him, and finally she was forced to admit to herself what she had been hoping was not true: Eric had lost himself in his inventions, and could no longer give his time to love and memories.

But because she could not forget the way he used to smile, Peggy fled to the hills, and there, in the silence of fields and woodlands, she tried to think her way out of her troubles.

The task was harder than she had anticipated. The steep hill in the west seemed to say, "Last year you climbed me with Eric;" or the old woods would say, "You and Eric went down here, and the white violets and trilliums are blooming again."

"Another Spring!" cried Peggy in despair. "How can I bear it?"

Then one day she decided that the only thing to do was to visit the very places she was avoiding, and she walked bravely into the forest.

Down the leafy pathway she went, and the sight of trilliums hurt her. Blinded by tears, she stumbled along the way, until she came to a little clearing. Here in the center was a stump, and on it sat a young man. He was gazing at the brook that babbled among the mossy rocks and roots of old trees, and lost itself in the forest. And there were white violets growing at the edge.

"Eric!" said Peggy softly, and saw that she was mistaken as soon as the young man turned towards her.

"How do you do?" he said kindly. "I am afraid I am not Eric. I am sorry—if you were expecting to find him."

"No," said Peggy. "I wasn't expecting him."

She picked a trillium and bent her face over it so that he would not see that she was crying.

"Sit here," said the observing young man and her to the stump. "I'll sit on these dry leaves," he added. "See how faded and old they are now. I was here when these leaves were falling. They were gay creatures of scarlet and gold. But now they are all dead."

"Like dreams that have died," said Peggy.

The young man looked at her quickly.

"Queer you should say that," he said. "I left one here and came to think about it today."

"She—died?" asked Peggy softly.

"No," he replied. "But she forgot."

"Eric did not die, either," said Peggy. "He is living, but not loving," and she laughed, and crushed the white trillium.

The young man picked it up as she tossed it away.

"When you love with your soul," he he said, "it is hard to tear away and begin again."

"Very," said Peggy.

"But I believe that is the only way to love," said the young man.

"So do I," she agreed.

"Do you?" he asked; then leaned towards her. "Those loves of ours could not have been real," he said, "or they would have lasted. I think—this Spring—we shall find another dream."

"Perhaps," said Peggy.

"Together," he said; but as he had known her only a few minutes, he said it under his breath.

His Ilk.

A kindly old lady, meeting a beggar, offered him a penny. The beggar eyed it disdainfully.

"Ma'am," he began, "did ye read in the papers about a beggar what died and left $50,000 to a lady who'd given him a dime?"

"I seem to remember something of the sort," replied the old lady, "but—"

"Well, that fellow was me brother. That's de kind of family we are!"

Conscientious Witness.

The oldtime practice of kissing the bride received a jolt at a recent Rowan county wedding when an awkward-looking guest was asked if he had kissed the bride, and replied: "Not lately."

Between the Two

By PHIL MOORE

JANE, with a sigh of relief, heard the Door shut downstairs as the final mourner left. Quickly she arose from the daybed, pulled up the shades that had been decorously lowered, threw the smelling salts into the waste basket, drew up a chair to her deck, and began to "take account of stock," as she called it. With two young girls waiting for their 20-year-old sister to produce some bread and butter for them, to say nothing of clothes, there was no time to spend in mourning for even so beloved an aunt as hers had been.

On one side of a sheet of paper she wrote down what she knew her Aunt had left her, and on the other what of it was owed to others. The first column was large but the second was larger, so when all the items in the latter were settled there remained nothing for her except the farm, consisting of house, barn and 70 acres of land, mostly pasture.

A few days later the village was stirred by the news that Jane Arnold was going to raise turkeys. Not only that, but she had sent to Virginia for old Turkeys to start with.

"Never does any good to send so far away for stock," said one farmer.

"Hear she's going to grow her own feed for them. Now, you can't do that up in this country," said another.

"What in the world does she want to farm for?" asked their wives. "Why doesn't she go to the city, take a business course there, and then get a job? Her cousin might as well take care of those girls in the city as up there on that lonely old farm."

The day after the new turkeys came every farmer around who could find an excuse rode by the chicken yard where Jane was keeping them.

"Too bad, too bad" the "educated" farmer of the community orated to his fellow citizens that evening, as they leaned against the railing outside the grocery store. "Jane's riding for a fall, I'm afraid. She's spent a lot of money for those turkeys, and she'll lose them—mark my words, she'll lose every one of them. You can't raise turkeys up in this country, I know because I've tried it."

However, Jane continued to try, encouraging herself by remembering that the "educated farmer had tried a great many things without making a success of them. At the same time she prospered gradually until her turkey farm became the show place of the state.

Jane found that she had lost track of her friends, most of whom were now married and raising their families, as were her own sisters. It made Jane seem old and feel lonely to visit them, perhapes because in all the 15 years she had been working, she had never met a man who appealed to her. Never? Well, yes, once. He was in the office of the feed manufacturer awaiting a chance to see him, as was she. They exchanged comments on the weather and the subways, and then it was Jane's turn for her interview. As she left the private office, he entered it. Frequently afterwards she had thought of him and wondered what his business was there.

It was after a very depressing visit at the home of one of her merriest friends that Jane decided to attend the convention of feed manufacturers held in a distant city. The sight of breakfast sets for four enameled to match the china, cutwork scarfs for bookcases, and little surprises for family birthdays, had given her a terrible feeling of loneliness, an impression of being shut out of everything worth while.

Competent men now cared for her turkeys, although she had never left them alone for so long a time before. But it paid her to do so, because at the convention her enthusiasm revived. Mr. Herd, the only manufacturer she knew, introduced her to many of his friends, among whom was Jim Drew, the man who had first attracted her.

Mr. Drew had considerable money invested in poultry feed concerns, so it was natural that he should wish her opinions of the many brands of feed. It was natural, too, that since they were both alone, they should spend their evenings together.

At the end of the convention Jane returned to her farm, Mr. Drew to his bachelor apartment. Yet there still were so many pressing questions concerning proper feeding of poultry to be discussed that he motored up once a week to see her.

Then, in the Fall, when the cattle came from pasture to their barns and people moved in from lawns and porches to their homes, he asked her to be his wife.

Life was one round of pleasure for her during those days—or would have been if she hadn't felt that she must personally supervise the care of her turkeys. Once Jim remonstrated: "I'll be glad, Jane, when we're married and you don't have to divide your time between the turkeys and me."

A doubt entered her mind at that. Did he think she was going to give up raising turkeys when she married him? But a moment later the doubt had passed, never to return until one evening, less than a week before their wedding.

"Have you found anyone to whom you can sell your turkeys?" he asked, as they sat on the porch and gazed over the moon-drenched hills.

"Sell them?" Jane was shocked. "Why, they are to me as some children are to their mothers. I couldn't sell them."

"But what would we do with them? I want to take you motoring all over the country, then to Europe. You couldn't keep coming back every day to attend to some old turkey that has black head or rheumatism."

"I don't mean it that way. Can't you see? I've raised them when all the village said I couldn't. They grew for me. They've earned me money enough to keep me comfortable for the rest of my life. I couldn't give them to someone who wouldn't know how to care for them, any more than you could bring yourself to sell your horse to the average apartment-house dweller. I wouldn't know what to do with myself if I didn't have the turkeys to care for and worry about. They're—why, they're my life's work."

"Then you'll have to choose between your life's work and me. I won't have any turkeys around where I am, and that's final. I detest the things." His voice was hot with anger.

"I'm sorry, Jim," said Jane, trying to make the blow as easy as she could. "I couldn't stop taking care of turkeys"

"You mean it?"

On one side of her mind was the picture of cute breakfast sets enamelled to match the china, and on the other a yard full of turkeys strutting with outspread wings. The second picture blotted out the first.

"Yes."

She could see the suffering on his face and feel most of it herself. She was sorry for him, as he went down the path, and yet—

"Well, that's over," she said to the moon-drenched hills. "I must see that those little turkeys' heads are greased tomorrow morning."

Right in the Swim

By MONTE DARRELL

ATHLETIC women were all right—in their place—conceded Joe Bardmore, but when they turned life-savers it was a little too much, especially if you were the fellow who was saved. It was all the worse, too, if the heroine was as tactful about the business that you couldn't feel justified in hating her for it.

Joe, as a matter of fact, wasn't entirely sure that it was his duty as a gentleman to fall in love with Jill Martin, the comely and competent young lady who had yanked him out of the Mystery river when, in attempting to swim across, he'd found his courage greater than his swimming ability.

Jill wasn't a girl that most fellows would object to loving, either. She was easy on the eyes at all times, and, in a bathing suit, she could make most masculine pulses skip a beat or two. Not Joe's pulse, however. Joe had a sinking feeling every time he say that trim, long-limbed figure which so surprisingly concealed steel-spring muscles. He could picture to himself just how effortless Jill had trudgeoned out to midstream where he was choking and gasping, and how unconsciously she had crooked a brown forearm underneath his chin, towing him to shore as impersonally as she would have retrieved her multi-colored rubber water ball.

Sick as he was from the tide-water which he had swallowed the bedraggled Joe had attempted to stammer his awkward thanks, only to be good-naturedly laughed at by the slim sprite in the inappropriately decorative one-piece suit of scarlet worsted.

"Don't be a sil', Joey," she laughed. "You'd have got ashore all right by yourself, but I had to have a subject for a demonstration of my newly acquired rescue technique. I owe you an apology for almost strangling you."

Her handling of the situation was perfect—as perfect as her swimming; but perfection sometimes pails upon a man. Joe knew he would have drowned if it hadn't been for Jill. Joe knew that Jill was the nicest girl in town, and a friend of his family's. Joe knew that something was expected of him.

So Joe bought Jill the biggest bouquet of American Beauty roses he could find, then went away for the Summer.

"And, all joking aside," Joe told his friends, "she sure is some flower. On the level, I've never met another girl like her. She makes these up-to-the minute flappers look like common tomboys. She's the type of woman that likes to be taken care of, but she's a good sport, too. I taught her to play golf this Summer and to paddle a canoe."

"She wasn't able to go in the ocean this season," he explained. "Doctor's orders. Seems she strained an ankle ligament or something yast Winter, and bathing would be bad for it. Whatever it was though, it didn't interfere with her dancing. She's a wonderful stepper, too."

"Sounds a little as if she might be afraid of the water."

Jasmine joined the group, so Joe's hymns of praise were temporarily silenced. The new Mrs. Bardmore was indisputably beautiful, although apparently not of the prevailing athletic type. Her skin was noticeably white in contrast to the tanned faces of the others.

"Here comes Jill Martin," announced one of Joe's alert friends. "Has she met Mrs. Bardmore yet?"

"Not 'Jammy Williams' any more! Jammy Bardmore," beamed Jasmine, returning Jill's embrace. "Now, not a word about old times until I've sent this hulking husband of mine about his business. Then we'll have a heart-to-heart confessional."

She made her prettiest au revoirs to Joe, who was obviously glad to dodge congratulations by escaping to the wharf, where he was to join a fishing party.

"Yes, I knew you were a friend and neighbor of Joe's," admitted Jasmine. "He told me all about how you saved his life, and everything."

"And you never told him a word about going to school, and camp, and college with me?"

"Not a word, Jill, darling. I wanted to surprise you all. Anyhow, you and the Mystery river rescue were really sore subjects with poor Joe for a long, long time. He didn't like being saved a bit."

"What rubbish!" Jill laughed. "Anybody at all could have pulled the man out of that puddle."

"Nevertheless, he thinks you are a superwoman, and he's afraid of you."

"But, great glory, Jammy, wait until he sees you swim!"

"Jammy Williams—I mean Jammy Bardmore—you don't tell me you are quitting the game? It's only a month to the New England championships in the Charles river basin."

"Jill, if you ever so much as mention water sports to me in front of Joe or any of his friends, I'll never speak to you again."

"But, Jammy, you'd be absolutely certain this year of the amateur title in the quarter and half mile, to say nothing of keeping your fancy diving trophy."

"Oh, yes, some day," Jasmine smiled. "When Joe has time to teach me to do the breast-stroke."

Martyr to Duty.

Chuck—I thought you promised to save me some of that liquor you had.

Wally—I tried to, but it ate holes through everything I put it in and I finally had to drink it.

The Sale of a Wayside Inn

By CLAIRE WESSON

THE Wayside Inn—not the one that Longfellow made famous, but another equally attractive, though much smaller—stood alluringly back from the street. Ferris Gordon, with his artist's eye, looking for a retreat where he might rest after a strenuous season doing mural paintings, was fascinated. He drew his little roadster to a halt in front of the gate—for there actually was a gate—and entered.

The landlady was a real lady, it would seem, and a widow in slightly reduced circumstances. Arrangements were soon made and Gordon was installed in a roomy chamber overlooking the walled garden. Even the maid, Anne, he had heard her called, who waited on him at dinner, seemed to fit into her surroundings. She was a demure creature, as a maid should be. She had a white skin, unrelieved by any color, dark hair, smoothly arranged, and beautiful eyes, large and dark. Later he learned that she was the landlady's daughter. Guests were few as yet and the work not difficult.

In the evening, having nothing to do, it occurred to Gordon that perhaps Anne might like to take a spin with him. Not seeing her about he made the suggestion to the landlady, Mrs Evans. "I wonder if your daughter would object to taking a ride with me?"

Mrs. Evans smiled benignly at him, Gordon was an engaging fellow and one trusted him on sight. "Here she is, she can speak for herself," she answered. "Mr. Gordon was asking if you would like to ride him, Marie."

Gordon turned to meet a young woman with a carefully curled bob, glowing cheeks and eyes the exact counterpart of Anne's. How was he to know that Mrs. Evans had two daughters!

Marie turned her eyes, so like Anne's, on Gordon. "It is very kind of you to ask me," she remarked.

Gordon bowed politely. It was on the tip of his tongue to say, "Won't Miss Anne go, too?" And then he remembered that his little roadster could accommodate but two. Anne's turn could come next.

He thought little about Anne during the ride. He found Marie too engrossing. She was sparkling, witty, adorably pretty. He found himself begging for her company again the following night.

Anne waited on him at table as patiently as ever. She was cool, sweet and aloof. He caught himself comparing the two sisters in his mind as he eyed her surreptitiously. That lily-white skin was unusual. He believed her hair would curl if she would allow it. He wondered how she would look "dolled up" like Marie.

He never saw Marie in the dining-room. No doubt she was a lazy minx. Younger sisters were like that, always more favored than the older ones. He determined to invite Anne to ride with him that night. He asked her at dinner and she accepted readily, as though the invitation was not at all unexpected. Perhaps she read his mind.

"I'm not in for a very jolly evening, he told himself, as he brought the car around to the gate. He could not help wishing he had asked Marie, after all. Then she came tripping down the walk, carrying her head with that gay tilt that he admired.

"Where is Anne?" he gasped.

Marie stopped short. A flicker of surprise passed over her countenance. "Anne? You didn't want me?"

Gordon flushed with embarrassment. "Of course I want you, but—you see, my car holds only two."

"And you asked Anne? I thought—Anne has a headache. I see you don't want a substitute." She wheeled about as though to go back to the house.

He laid a detaining hand on her arm. "Please, you know I want you," he pleaded.

She yielded reluctantly.

She was rather silent at first, and then she threw off her air of seeming to be offended. How merry she could be! Her wit fascinated Gordon as well as her beauty. He gave no thought to Anne until the next morning. His conscience smote him as he noted the half-melancholy turn of her lip, the cool aloofness in her voice. If Marie had not so bewitched him he might have fallen in love with Anne, he believed.

"You don't mind my not riding with you last evening?" she said. "Marie is much better company than I. She told you I had a headache?"

"Yes," he answered. "But—" He stopped, embarrassed. "I hope your head is better."

"It's quite all right," she answered. "We have pop-overs this morning, Mr. Gordon."

So far, Gordon had been the only regular boarder at the inn. Parties came for lunch or dinner, but none stayed over night. A group of young people burst in on them that evening. Mrs. Evans herself showed them into the dining room. She was evidently acquainted with them. Anne was in the iktchen. She came in presently with her tray.

Anne retained her pose. "It's only for a week, so Susan could have a vacation," she smiled.

"I'd never have known you in that guise!" another exclaimed.

Anne cast a maliciously mischievous glance at Gordon. "Some folks think I'm my own double," she replied.

"Anne-Marie!" Gordon had her to himself that evening in the quaint walled garden. "Why did you try to deceive me?"

"You deceived yourself," she laughed. "When I saw your mistake I merely fell in with the idea. It's plain enough which one of me you like better."

"Anne-Marie!" he cried adoringly, "I feel as though I was about to commit bigamy by marrying you."

Six May Pay For Obregon's Death; Will Get Trials

Believed Half Dozen Marked For Execution As Aftermath Of Obregon Slaying

REPUBLIC REMAINS IN TRANQUIL STATE

(International News Service)

MEXICO CITY, July 20.—Approximately half a dozen persons may pay the death penalty for the assassination of President-elect Alvaro Obregon by Jose De Leon Toral, a young art student.

Announcement was made at police headquarters today that Toral and his accomplices will be placed on trial at an early date. A verdict of guilty will entail the death penalty, probably executed by a firing squad.

Officials made it plain that the trial will be conducted with due process of law so that there can be no outside criticism of the government's actions.

Belief is growing that the conflict existing between the church and state may enter a more violent phase as a result of the assassination. Deep feeling has been stirred in religious circles by the charges of President Calles and Chief of Police Zertuche that the crime involved "direct clerical action."

While the Republic remains tranquil, with soldiers on guard, there is apprehension in some quarters that violence may be attempted.

"Mexico's Lindy" Is Going Home

Reverently silent, 200,000 persons lined New York's Gay White Way as 10,000 troops marched before six black horses drawing the artillery caisson on which was borne the body of Captain Emilio Carranza, Mexico's martyred Ambassador of Good Will, on the way back to the Lone Eagle's native land. The picture at the top shows the firing squad paying a soldier's tribute to the dead ace; below, a portion of the procession, with the casket in the foreground.

Ohio Coal Mines Pass Million Tons Mark During June

(International News Service)

CLEVELAND, July 20.—That the Ohio coal industry, which for many years has been in a "bad way", due to labor strife and unfavorable freight rates, is coming into "its own" again was indicated by recent advance reports that Ohio coal mines produced more than 1,000,000 tons of bituminous coal last June, several prominent Buckeye coal operators happily declared.

Thirty-two mines, operators claim, have been re-opened in the last two months in three Ohio fields—eastern Ohio, Hocking Valley and Cambridge—with a production which has steadily increased from 233,000 tons the first week in June to an estimated 275,000 tons in the final week of the same month. The total estimate of 1,015,000 tons of coal taken from Ohio workings in the sixth month of this year shows that the million ton mark has been topped for the first time since the soft coal strike was called nearly 15 months ago, it was said.

Many former union miners are now employed at the mines where the wage scale paid being a $6 base adopted last autumn by both Ohio and eastern Ohio coal operators association.

More than $100,000,000 has been lost to the railroads, merchants in the coal mining districts, the state, counties and towns through idleness and inability to compete with mines south of the Ohio river, statistics in the hands of J. L. Good, secretary of the Ohio Coal bureau, showed. However, if the Ohio coal industry returns to capacity production the total, including railroad freight rates returned annually to Ohio would be more than $200,000,000, operators stated.

Ohio mines will be producing nearly 2,000,000 tons monthly within three months if the rate of increased production continues.

Canadian Dance Marathon Halted By Police Today

(International News Service)

WINDSOR, Ont., July 20.—Police today prepared to halt the dance marathon at the Border Cities arena because two girls and two men entrants in the dance became delirious and partially crazed by the monotonous circling of the floor. The dance is scheduled to end tomorrow night.

Miss Eleanor Ward became delirious this morning. She started to scratch and beat her brother, William, with whom she was dancing. She was subdued and placed under a doctor's care. Earlier in the day three others became delirious. They babbled incoherently and were placed under medical restraint.

Liverpool Cathedral Gets Gift Of $50,000

(International News Service)

LIVERPOOL, England, July 20.—A gift of $50,000 towards the completion of the Liverpool cathedral has been made by Francis Neilson, former member of parliament, and his wife, Mrs. Helen Swift Neilson, widow of the multi-millionaire Chicago meat packer, Edward Morris.

On a visit to Liverpool, the couple declared that they considered the site chosen for the edifice the finest in the world.

"What attracted us to Liverpool cathedral more than anything else," Mrs. Neilson declared, "is the fact that here there certainly seems to be a movement back to the old spirit of the abbeys, when they were the meeting place of all the people in their joys and sorrows.

"We believe that the Liverpool cathedral will send out a warmth which may infect the older cathedrals with a new life and make them again truly communal centers."

Old Fort Macon To Be Restored To Its Former Condition

(International News Service)

RALEIGH, N. C., July 20.—Bringing back historic old Fort Macon into the best state of repair and attractiveness to the public is the object behind the recent appointment of a warden to look after the property, according to the Department of Conservation and Development.

Wilbur Lewis of Beaufort has been named for the post and has already taken over the work, it was announced at the department offices here. His first activities will be to clear up the fort grounds and make the premises more attractive in general. The old moat and battlements will be tidied up and the entire interior of the ramparts will be placed in neat appearance.

While funds for work around the fort are limited, the appointment is the first step in putting the place in first-class condition, it was stated. No extensive repairs will be undertaken this year. On the whole, according to Assistant Forester F. H. Claridge, who has made an inspection of the fort recently for the department, the building is in a fairly good state of repair.

FRENCH DOCTORS MUST SERVE AT SMALL PAY

(International News Service)

PARIS, July 20.—The director of a French clinic labors for love and honor and not for money. His earnings in round figures amount to ten dollars per month. In other words his salary is smaller than that of the average office boy in Paris.

"It is a shame and a scandal" writes Maurice Prax in the Petit Parisien, that our finest doctors and surgeons must work and study for years in order to earn a mare pittance of 32 cents per day."

SCOTLAND YARD MEN MUST NOT CHEW GUM

(International News Service)

LONDON July 20.—The alleged "Americanization" of London is apparently not to be permitted to extend to its police force.

A regulation just issued by Scotland Yard prohibits London policemen from chewing gum while on duty.

NEW USE FOR THE BASSO.

It was after the opera. The expensively dressed woman approached the broad-shouldered man.

"If I am not mistaken" she said "I have the honor of speaking to the renowned baso have I not?"

"And what can I do for you madam?" he asked pleasantly.

"I can't find my car" she answered pleasantly. "Would you be so kind as to call out 'James' at the top of your voice?"—Tit-Bits.

Fanny Hurst Thinks Paris Hardest Place In World To Work

(International News Service)

PARIS, July 20.—"Paris is the hardest place in the world for one to work," says Fanny Hurst, well-known American writer now spending a few weeks in the gay city.

"There is just one temptation after another, so many interesting people to see and so many lovely shops. Everytime I sit down to my little typewriter, I begin to think about the pretty clothes there are inside them and want to go right down and buy them all."

Miss Hurst really came to Paris to work, bringing her portable typewriter with her. She intends to study the French women whom she finds very different from their American and English cousins. She confesses that she will write a novel on France if the idea happens to come.

"Diamond Jim," a little pet tortoise with gilded shell and inset with small red stones, accompanied her—also Mr. Danielson and his portable piano.

Pump Baboon's Blood To Try Experiment In Restoration Of Life

(International News Service)

TASHKENT, Turkestan, July 20.—One of the most remarkable life restoration operations on record is credited to Professor Michaelovsky, director of the Tashkent Physiological Institute.

Professor Michaelovsky took a two-year old baboon from the local zoo, anaesthetized it and pumped out every drop of blood from its veins. The animals by all tests of modern science was dead. It did not breathe. It's heart stopped beating.

Fifty-five minutes later Professor Michaelovsky repumped the carefully preserved blood into the animal's veins. The baboon regained consciousness instantly without the aid of medical or physical stimulants.

Two hours later it was replaced in its cage at the zoo, frisky and normal to such an extent that it climbed up the grating, swung itself on the trapese and ate a hearty meal of bananas. The baboon is still alive.

Plan Greater Motor Club For Greater New Castle

"A greater motor club for a greater New Castle," is the slogan adopted for the meeting of the membership of the New Castle Motor Club, which will take place at 7:30 this evening in the council chamber of the city building. At this time, the official drive for new members will be closed, according to Ralph W. Bolsinger, the chairman of the drive.

"Although the campaign is now closing, that does not mean that the motor club will be dormant for the rest of the year," comments Mr. Bolsinger. "None of us are going to cease our efforts. People now know what the motor club is and what it stands for. They will not be slow in joining. Solicitors will keep working, for the New Castle Motor Club, before it can feel that it has accomplished its object, must have 5,000 members."

Mr. Bolsinger invites every motorist in Lawrence county to the meeting, whether or not they are members of the club.

Capital Swelters From Heat Wave

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, July 20.—With five prostrations recorded in a heat wave which sent street thermometers to 100, the weather bureau promised no relief to the capital today.

Showers were expected but it was predicted that they would not break the wave. The official record showed 95 above as the hottest yesterday, but a downtown kiosk soared to 110.

Modern Devices Give Every Man Growing Power

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, July 20.—Introducing Mr. American Citizen, with 125 slave power at his beck and call every day!

Such is the picture drawn by President Walter Dill Scott of the Northwestern university, on a basis of data he has collected on the power of mechanics and "robots"—mechanical men—in this modern age.

The United States, President Scott finds has nearly three times the slave power, per capita, of any foreign country, and the accumulation of power is increasing "almost hourly."

"The American who today possesses 125 slave power will have nearly double that in a few years. He also is availing himself of improved methods and implements for utilizing that power."

In ancient times, President Scott points out, a comparatively few persons held all the power and used it chiefly for their own benefit while the modern mechanical slaves work for the masses as well as the patricians.

In Olden Days

"One ruler in Egypt once used the labor of 100,000 slaves for twenty years merely building a burial place for himself.

"Now it can be said that power applied any place in America benefits every citizen in the land; that every tractor used on a farm increases the surplus of our food supply; that every truck helps in distribution of our commodities; that every additional unit of power used in a manufacturing plant improves the quality and reduces the prices of merchandise; that every passenger train and every pleasure vehicle increases the solidarity of the American people.

"Mechanical power is a mysterious force that cannot be visualized and therefore cannot be appreciated readily.

"If we should imagine the seven horse power possessed by every inhabitant of the United States in terms of human slaves and work horses, it might be equated by 125 slaves and two horses for every man, woman and child in America.

Power Distributed

"This democratic distribution of power in America is producing striking economic changes in the American people, for the possession of power and the accumulation of wealth go hand in hand.

"The average citizen of America today possesses great power shares in the benefits of much more. He not only has unprecedented wealth but he has even more credit. He lives in quarters that contain luxuries to the aristocrats of former ages. He possesses a surplus of this world's goods and may therefore be spoken of as a rich man. He is possessed of all advantages of the rich .

"The accumulation of power, and particularly of mechanical power, is resulting in profound moral changes, also."

Two things that make terrible noises when they're almost run down are phonographs an' p'destrians.

Too much of "ducation' is useful only to those who will get a living by teaching it to others to each to others.

FIRST BOTTLE HELPED HER

Keeps On Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Philadelphia, Pa.—"I always use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before and after childbirth. I am a mother of three children—two little girls and a baby boy. I would get rundown, nervous, dizzy and weak sometimes so I had to lie in bed. I would take the Vegetable Compound as a tonic and I always saw an improvement after taking the first bottle. I found it to be a good tonic. I always recommend your medicines to my friends and I cannot speak too highly of them."—MRS. ANNA LOUDERBACK, 1607 S. Front Street, Phila., Pa.

Word Received Prof. R. X. Graham Has Operations; News Of New Wilmington

(Special To The News)

Vienna Museum Has Oriental Display

Over 5,000 Precious Exhibits Are Ready For Inspection At Show Place

(International News Service)

VIENNA, July 20.—A new museum has been opened in Vienna containing one of the most interesting Oriental collections of the world. Altogether 5,000 precious exhibits are now available for public inspection, many of which were previously only accessible to students of research.

A part of the valuable material (Chinese lacquers, Satsuna works of art and other evidences of Eastern cultures) has been collected by the late Archduke Franz Ferdinand the crown price of the former Austro-Hungary Monarchy.

And—the times change—the Ministry of Education of the Austrian Republic has established the new museum in that very part of the former imperial palace, which was intended as the residence of Franz Ferdinand, when he succeeds Emperor Francis Joseph.

Coroner Finds That Evans City Boy Had Received Broken Neck

Harry Fox Is Believed To Have Been Paralyzed In Pool At Harmony Junction

EVANS CITY, July 20.—That Harry Fox, aged 16, of Evans City, who was drowned in the Connoquenessing creek below the falls at Harmony Junction about 8 o'clock Tuesday evening, was paralyzed and could not swim on account of a broken neck, and did not drown on account of swirling waters, was the statement issued by Coroner William F. Pohl, who investigated.

An inquest into the death of the lad was conducted by Coroner Pohl, who found that he had a broken neck. Fox had dived from the side of the pool, and it is believed that he struck an object in the pool.

It is a well known fact that logs are in the pool and that frequently they are tossed about by the fall of water from the falls. It is thought that young Fox struck one of these in his plunge.

Stories that he had not dived into the pool were set aside when at the inquest two boys and a woman testified that they had seen him plunge into the water.

The fact that his neck was broken also clears up the mystery of why he did not answer his chums when they asked him if he needed aid.

Funeral services for the victim were held from the family home in Evans City at 3:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon with Rev. Mr. Nugent of the United Presbyterian church of Evans City officiating. Interment was made in the Evans City cemetery.

Kiwanians Hear Talk By Former Coach Of Pitt

Defines Pep As Purpose, Endeavor And Perseverance, At Dinner Meeting

ELLWOOD CITY, July 20.—Dr. Tommy Hollerman, former star and coach of the Pitt football team, was the speaker at the weekly dinner-meeting of the local Kiwanis club Thursday evening in the dining room of the Lutheran church. His topic, naturally, was "Athletics" and he gave some interesting side-lights on the great game of football, as well as athletics in general. He stressed the word pep, stating that it embodied the three words, purpose, endeavor and perserverance.

Although practicing dentistry in Greenville, Dr. Hollerman still finds time to lend a hand with the coaching of Thiel college squad. He gave many interesting personal incidents connected with his career on the field, and explained why so many foot-ball stars flopped after they got into the business world.

Cloud Burst Does Damage In Ellwood

ELLWOOD CITY, July 20. — One of the most terrific rain storms in the history of the town occurred last night about nine o'clock, with a severe electrical upheaval, followed by peals of thunder and torrents of rain descended upon the local citizens.

The subway of course, was flooded with water, as were the cellars of the dwellings and stores in that vicinity. Several sewers in various parts of town were unable to cope with the increased flow of water, and backed up with annoying results. Each side of Lawrence avenue next to the curb was a veritable river of swift-flowing propensities, and ambitious pedestrians who wished to cross the street without going to the corner, had to crawl through parked cars.

City employes will be working for some time to repair the ravages that were wrought by one of the most terrific storms ever experienced here.

HIGH LIGHTS OF HISTORY

By J. Carroll Mansfield

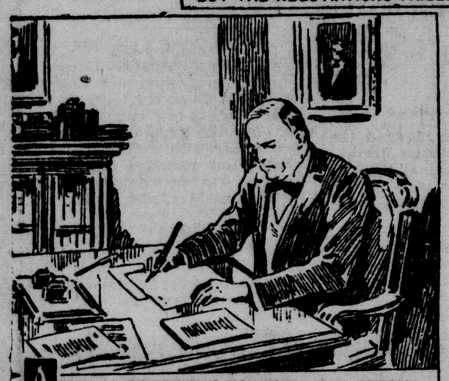

The Story Of Our War With Spain
"Remember The Maine"!

STUNNED AT FIRST BY THE NEWS OF THE DESTRUCTION OF THE "MAINE" IN HAVANA HARBOR (FEB. 15, 1898), THE AMERICAN PUBLIC WAS LATER ELECTRIFIED TO ACTION BY THE REPORT OF THE NAVAL COURT OF INQUIRY THAT THE WARSHIP HAD BEEN BLOWN UP FROM THE OUTSIDE.

THROUGHOUT THE LAND ROSE THE CRY FOR VENGEANCE. "REMEMBER THE MAINE!" SPAIN, SEEING THAT AMERICAN INTERVENTION IN CUBAN AFFAIRS WAS IMMINENT, TRIED TO PARLEY WITH THE CUBAN REVOLUTIONISTS, WITH THE OBJECT OF GRANTING CUBA NOMINAL INDEPENDENCE. BUT THE NEGOTIATIONS FAILED.

APRIL 11, PRESIDENT McKINLEY, IN A SPECIAL MESSAGE TO CONGRESS, DECLARED, "IN THE NAME OF HUMANITY, IN THE NAME OF CIVILIZATION, IN BEHALF OF ENDANGERED AMERICAN INTERESTS, WHICH GIVE US THE RIGHT AND DUTY TO SPEAK AND ACT, THE WAR IN CUBA MUST STOP."

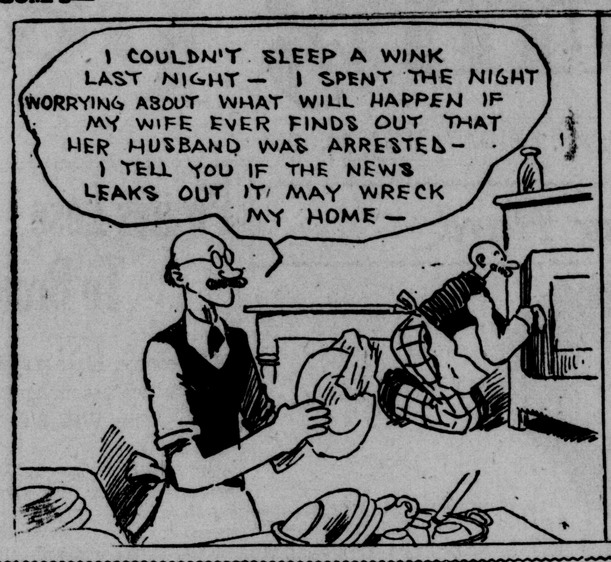

CONGRESS REPLIED PROMPTLY. APRIL 19 (THE ANNIVERSARY OF THE BATTLE OF LEXINGTON), IT PASSED RESOLUTIONS DEMANDING THE INDEPENDENCE OF CUBA AND THE WITHDRAWAL OF ALL SPANISH FORCES FROM THE ISLAND, AND AUTHORIZED THE USE OF FORCE TO EXECUTE THE DEMANDS.

Davies-Cavelli Stir Up Rivalry

Local Sport Has Been Featured By Welsh And Italians

FLYWEIGHTS EVENLY MATCHED BATTLERS

BACK IN THE days when Hector was a haggy pup, rivalry between the Welsh n Long avenue and the Italians in Division street was a topic of conversation wherever baseball fans or boxing enthusiasts gathered. The Welsh had a great team in the Terrace A. C., the Italians also had a fine aggregation in the Italian A. A. and the boxing fans shouted the praise of Battling Terry and Tommy Jones.

Naturally everytime a Welshman met an Italian it was either baseball or boxing argument that ensued and for years the keen rivalry continued. The Terrace passed as did Terry and Jones but the Italian A. A. is none other than the New Castle O & P team of today. But before the Terrace passed out it gave a great account of itself, likewise Terry and Jones.

This brings to mind the rivalry that exists now between two flyweight champions, Willie Davies, Oharelroi, probably one of the best in the world and Carl Cavelli, the Emmett Rocco of the small brigade and who holds the title in Ohio. Inasmuch as Carl formerly lived on Center street here, fought Harry Crisp a draw and staged a great bout here, he is esconced in fandom's affection.

There is no question but that there will be many loyal supporters of Davies and Cavelli pulling for each when they answer the bell Monday night. They met once at McKeesport and during the part of the 'go' Cavelli almost swept Davies off his feet. The low weight told on him in the last part of the bout and he lost the decision. Things will be different Monday as the weight has been fixed at 117 pounds, which is two pounds in Cavelli's favor.

Several of the Welsh boys around town are preparing to welcome Davies into the city as he is one of the outstanding Welshmen in athletics. He is a very likeable young chap but when he steps into the ring he is all business. Cavelli demonstrated in his bout with Harry Crisp that he asks no mercy, extends none and follows the ring rule of 'keep punching every second.'

Has Good Record

Cavelli has won from Frankie Van, knocked out Pee Wee McDonald, defeated Tony Leto, knocked out Sergeant Bozo Telic, drew with Tommy Hughes, beat Young Irish, the sensational Akronite, put Tony Leon away, followed it with a knockout over K. O. Morgan, stopped Johnny Cole, beat Al Taylor, knocked Johnny Cole cold and beat Al Taylor who kayoed Babe Rivers here—quite a record.

Davies has fought every topnitcher in the game and disputes the claim of Dave Adelman as being the greatest flyweight of the state.

Joe Boychan, the rugged boy from Newark, who fought a good battle with the fast Frankie Porto will return to box Eddie Ruttman of Akron They will go six rounds and this bout should be fast. Mickie Dugan who has boxed all the featherweights hereabouts will meet a fellow-countryman of Johnny Datto when he tackles the Filipino, Hacinto Perez Valdez.

The four round bout between Jackie Powers and Tony Canzoni should produce a winner this time as they boxed like two little wildcats last Monday night. Both asked to be remated so they could determine the supremacy and answer the bell again at the Jolly bowl Monday. There will be one other four round bout.

Alex Fox Working Hard

PITTSBURGH, Pa., July 20.—Former New Castle high school football star and captain-elect of the University of Pittsburgh football team for 1928, is pictured above hard at work in the Pitt stadium. Fox is keeping himself in trim this summer by putting in plenty of hours of manual labor.

Fox has a tough assignment for this fall in filling the shoes left vacant by Gibby Welch, all-American and last year's captain at Pitt. Coach Sutherland has intimated that he will likely utilize Fox this year at center. There are something like 60,000 numbers to be burned on the seats at the stadium and it looks as if the former New Castle boy is tackling a healthy sized job.

Friday, August 10 Set As Haid Tribute Day At Game In Pittsburgh

Friday, August 10, has been definitely set as the day upon which New Castle fans will go to Pittsburgh to honor Harold Haid, local lad, who is with the St. Louis Cardinals. Meeting in the Leslie hotel Thursday evening, the committee heard a letter read from the Pittsburgh baseball club, and after some discussion set August 10 as the day, made arrangements to have reserved tickets sent out, and the movement is now definitely on.

Chairman John J. Maher asked for suggestions Thursday night that would be of assistance to the committee in formulating plans and a number of things were advanced.

The tickets for the game will be here in a day or so, Secretary Alec Samuels being instructed to get them. They will be the regular $1.50 reserved seats, located just in back of the St. Louis bench. These will be sold for $2, the 50 cents difference being for the purpose of buying a gift for Haid.

The plans are all set, the only thing remaining now being the carrying out of those plans. Friday, August 10, will be Harold Haid day at Forbes field and the delegation going down from here should be large enough to attract attention.

This is one event in which promises and moral support avail but little. The only support worth anything will be the purchase of a ticket for the game and then attending.

Tilden Violated Amateur Rule Committee Claims

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, July 20. — William Tilden, American tennis ace, was barred from competition in the final zone matches of the Davis cup play following the unanimous agreement of fifteen committee members of the United States Lawn Tennis Association that he had violated the "player-writer rule," it was revealed Thursday in a statement issued by the U. S. L. T. A. headquarters here.

The statement, issued by Edward B. Moss, executive secretary of the association, revealed that the present issue arose when Dr. Sumner Hardy, president of the Pacific Coast Association, read an article in a San Francisco newspaper headed "Tilden Reviews First Weeks Play at Wimbledon."

Dr. Hardy immediately wrote to Holcombe Ward, chairman of the amateur rules committee, pointing out that this was a violation of the "player-writer rule," which holds that a player may not write news stories about competitions in which he is taking part.

Moss said that Samuel H. Collom, president of the U. S. L. T. A., and Joseph T. Wear, chairman of the Davis cup committee, with whom final decision rested, were immediately notified, and it was "recommended" to them that Tilden be barred from further competition. Moss pointed out that the final decision was not made here.

A meeting of fifteen members of various committees was called here, and it was unanimously decided that Tilden should be barred, Moss's statement said. Collom and Wear were so advised, and have now taken the step desired.

Penn State Men Go With Yankees

VanAtta And Lesko, Star Battery, Are Now Working For New York

(Special To The News)

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., July 20.—The New York Yankees have signed contracts wtih Russell VanAtta, Al Lesko and Johnny Roepke, it is announced today.

VanAtta and Lesko, who formed the battery for most of the Penn State games this year, went directly to the New York team a few days ago. The Yanks did not retain Roepke, but sent him on option to Scranton of the New York-Pennsylvania league. Kenny Haines, another pitcher, will pitch for Scranton. Haines did not sign a contract with the big leaguers, but went direct to the Scranton club.

Roepke, it will be remembered, was Penn State's football star of the 1927 season.

PITTSBURGH, July 20.—The winning streak of the Pirates was broken yesterday when Brooklyn defeated Pittsburgh 3 to 0. Another "Lindy"

By Feg Murray

It is quite a far cry from baseball to aviation, yet each has its place in the world, and each has its "Lindy". This "Lindy" never flew the Atlantic, yet he is a hero in his own way just the same. His play around second base has been one of the bright features of the Cleveland ball team this year, and fans in the Forest City would not trade him, if such a thing were possible, for the Giants' "Lindy". For Carl Lind, the former Tulane University boy, has been one of the reasons that the Indians have been in the first division.

Don Carlos Lind is a soft-spoken six-footer who played shortstop for Tulane and Peoria. Eddie Morgan, a schoolmate, now the Indian third sacker, was getting most of the hurrahs in Dixie, so Carl went out to show the home folks down in New Orleans that he was just as good, even though he didn't get as much ballyhoo. So, when he got his chance at second this year when Fonseca was moved over to first, he started out with a bang and made sure of his job, and has been going strong ever since.

As a pivot man on double plays Lind is about the best in the league, and also he can cover more ground than any other keystone guardian save Bucky Harris. He is what George Uhle calls a "wall for any pitcher" and he can sock the ball, too, as his average of around .300 shows.

Trainor Beaten In Tournament At Pittsburgh

George Trainor, Local Junior Golfer, Loses To Fred Brand Jr. In Amateur Play

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, July 20.—Four youths—two of them from Kiski and the others from Pittsburgh and Corry, Erie county—were fighting it out here today for the title of junior-amateur golf champion of western Pennsylvania over the Shannopin Country Club course.

Fred Brand Jr., medalist of the tourney, was pitted against George Orcutt, Corry, in one semi-final match today, while the other semi-final engagement found Harry Ramsay of Kiski opposing a fellow townsman, Denny St. Clair, the youngster who recently won the open tourney at Indiana, Pa. The winners of these matches were to meet in the finals late this afternoon.

The young Pittsburgher, Brand, defeated W. F. Marks of Kiski, 8 up with six holes remaining, and then won out over George Trainor, New Castle, 3 up at the 17th hole.

Orcutt eliminated the Erie entry, W. T. McCallum, 3 and 1, after defeating Ray Totten, Pittsburgh, in an extra hole match.

St. Clair defeated J. R. Royston, 6 and 2; and Bill Addenbrook, Beaver valley, 6 and 5. The other Kiski lad, Ramsay, won over Jack Dalton, Pittsburgh, 6 and 5, and Tom Underwood, Pittsburgh, 6 and 4.

Ruth Bangs Out Two More Homers

Babe Ruth Hits 37th And 38th Homers At Expense Of Chicago White Sox

PIRATES' STREAK FINALLY ENDED

By LES CONKLIN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, July 20.—Pittsburgh's winning spurt of nine straight victories and the Boston Braves' string of ten consecutive defeats had been snapped today, but two other possible records are still in the making. The Yankees have won seven in a row and the Phillies, with eleven straight setbacks since starting west, are well on their way to a new record.

Ruth's 37th and 38th homers yesterday accounted for four runs, as many as the Chicago White Sox got with thirteen hits, and the Yanks grabbed a 6 to 4 decision. Although knocked out in the ninth, Herb Pennock chalked up his fourteenth victory.

One of the nattiest pitching duels of the season was waged by Rube Walberg of the Athletics and Sam Gray of St. Louis. Walberg yielded only two hits and Gray four, the A's getting a 2 to 0 verdict on Simmon's homer with one on. Simmon's single in the eleventh inning of the nightcap gave the A's a 4 to 3 victory.

Buzz McWeeney of the Dodgers stopped the Pirates, blanking them 3 to 0. The braves came to life by hammering three Cincinnati pitchers for thirteen hits and a 9 to 4 win.

Hurst, Hafey and Harper each hit their twelfth homer as the Cardinals nipped the Phillies, 6 to 5. The Cards are 4½ games in front of the second-place Cubs.

Big Ed Morris, ex-mobile southpaw, registered his 13th victory when the Boston Red Sox nosed out Cleveland in the Eleventh, 3 to 2.

Detroit split a twin bill with Washington, dropping the nightcap by a 7 to 2 score after winning a 9 to 3 slugfest. Carroll and Gaston were the winning hurlers.

Dewberrys Defeat Church All-Stars

Schaas on the rubber for the Dewberrys outpitched Wylie Shiek and allowed but three hits. The Dewberrys found Shiek for seven hits. Two big innings, the first and fifth, gave the Dewberrys their runs. Uhle, Delone and Hoskins had extra-base hits.

Many Heavy Kings Won Crown With One Punch

One blow won the title.

By NORMAN E. BROWN,
Sports Writer for Centrall Press and New Castle News.

THE outstanding battles in the history of the heavyweight championship fights of modern times have ended with the sound of the crushing impact of one well aimed and well timed blow. The disappointing fights have been those which went the limit or in which the outcome was inevitable from the start.

The historic Sullivan-Corbett fight, because it was the milestone that marked the revolution of the boxing game, was rendered doubly thrilling because of the manner in which Sullivan—the grand old man of the ring—went to his end.

* * *

CORBETT started the round as he had the others, by jabbing Sullivan's nose with the rapidity of a machine gun. Sullivan's nose was swollen and sore. Jim poked his right again at Sullivan's face and the blow landed on the side of Sullivan's head. Corbett shot a second blow at the champ's head—another right. Sullivan, angered by the pain his nose was giving him and bewildered by that machine gun punching, swung wildly. The challenger calmly set himself and shot home a left straight to Sullivan's jaw.

Sullivan sank to the canvas like a water-soaked log in a mill pond.

* * *

In the 14th round Bob drew the clever Corbett into leaving an opening, shifted and drove his left into Corbett's stomach. A 'solar plexus" blow, they called it and the punch has gone down in history as such.

* * *

* * *

THE Jeffries-Johnson affair at Reno in 1910 was a tragedy. Jeffries was a beaten man when he entered the ring.

* * *

The Willard-Johnson affair at Havanna, Cuba, went 26 rounds. Johnson, still master of ring craft and generalship was finally counted out.

Then came the Willard-Dempsey bout at Toledo. No one who saw that first crunching blow that Dempsey shot home to the right of Willard's jaw will ever forget it. The blow left Willard's cheek a raw and swollen mass of beefsteak. His right eye was puffed and partly closed by the time his soggy carcass dropped to the canvass.

* * *

OF course the Dempsey-Firpo fight had more action in it, by far, while it lasted. But I doubt if any of the blows struck had the crushing effect of that one. Willard weathered the round and two more but simply plodded through them on his fighting instinct.

* * *

The Dempsey-Gibbons fight will always remain a "mystery" fight in many ways. But the fact that it went the limit was enough to make it an unsatisfactory affair.

And the public is still discussing the two Dempsey-Tunney battles. The one outstanding moment in the 20 rounds of fighting was that one in the seventh at Chicago when a serias of short arm blows put Tunney on the canvas.

* * *

The Tunney-Heeney battle will be a bloomer unless one or the other shoots over the ONE PUNCH.

Cleveland Manager Believes He Is Best In O. & P. Loop

CENTENNIALS ARE ROUNDING INTO SHAPE

SATURDAY afternoon at Centennial field the Cleveland and New Castle teams of the O. & P. league will meet in a game that may be one of the classiest contests of the season. Cleveland has only been here once this year and as they're now tuned up for the second half race and New Castle is striving to gain a higher rung on the O. & P. ladder, a large crowd of fans are expected to witness the tilt.

Kleinhouse, hurler for Cleveland, is supposed to be one of the best hurlers in the circuit and if one listened to Manager Novario, he is the best. However, before granting Dolk the argument it would not be amiss to ask George Textor something along the line because he has a couple of hurlers who were good enough to pitch winning ball in the first half of the season.

Hits 'Em Far.

Petie John, the hard hitting first baseman, is also with the Cleveland aggregation. There isn't a pitcher in the league who likes to see the big rawboned initial sacker step to the plate and, like Red Leonard, he clouts—and how! Of course there are good ball players wtih Cleveland but Kleinhouse and John are foremost in carrying Novario's banner.

Since New Castle was "knocked off" in the 21-inning game with Akron they haven't been winning as consistently as fans would like, but it is possible that they will again hit their stride. With the regular hurlers in condition, Yoxcheimer back and Hogan in Condition Saturday, it is probable that instead of a crippled outfit Cleveland will be forced to play against the walls to win.

Olds Deadlocked At Slippery Rock

The game was one of the best played of the year at Slippery Rock. Norris and Vaneman on the hill for the Olds gave the Slippery Rock team but three hits. The Olds had six hits off Weber and Rankin.

HARNESS RACES AT BUTLER TODAY

New Castle Fair Track Will Be Scene Of Racing Next Week

Harness race patrons will gather at Butler today and Saturday and witness the third meet of the circuit, in which horses from the Grand Circuit will cavort.

There are 125 horses ready to go for the purses and people who have not seen any of the circuit horses will have their opportunity at Butler or here next week.

The reason why the Grand Circuit horses are racing in the Progressive, Coil, Oil and Iron loop is due to the fact that it holds an earlier meet.

When the horses come to the New Castle fair track Friday and Saturday of next week a feature will be a man jumping from an aeroplane 3,000 feet in the air.

This is the first time G. O. P. campaign records have been in charge of a doctor, but they won't be doctored as much as usual.

N. Y. STOCKS

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, July 20.—After opening generally lower today, the stock market recovered somewhat on fairly good buying that followed in the next hour or two. Radio Corporation, which opened 2⅛ lower at 167⅞, came back to 168¼, General Motors which opened 2⅝ down at 186 recovered to 187⅞, and similar recoveries were made in other issues.

All of the early losses were not recovered in early trading, however, the trend at this point being irregular. U. S. Steel was up ⅛ at 133⅛, American Can down ⅜ at 83⅛, Montgomery Ward up ½ at 163¾, Sears Roebuck up ⅛ at 116⅛, Victor Talking Machine off ⅛ at 92, Wright Aero up ¾ at 147¼, Curtiss Aeroplane down 2½ at 101½ and Chrysler up 1⅛ at 73⅝.

Selling came into the market at the outset due to the disappointment in speculative quarters over the reduction of only $48,248,000 in brokers loans during the week ended July 18. Inasmuch as Wall street had been expecting a decrease in excess of $100,000,000 this relatively small decline caused a general recession at the opening however, buying quickly set in one of the decline and an upturn in prices resulted.

Call money 5 per cent.

TOO REAL

While a surgeon was finishing an operation on a patient, a fire started in a warehouse across the street, illuminating the whole operating room.

"You had better pull down the shade," said the doctor to the nurse as the patient began to come to, "I don't want him to think that the operation hasn't been a success."

GIANT SPAN ACROSS TWO RIVERS NEARS COMPLETION

Lewis and Clark viewing the junction of the two great rivers from the Piasa Bluffs at Alton. In 1804 the Lewis and Clark Expedition proceeded up the Missouri River, beginning the long exploration trip through the great Northwest Territory.

Transcontinental motor tourists who desire to avoid the congestion of St. Louis, Mo., and its vicinity will find a new and shorter route available after August 1, when two bridges which connect on each side of the Mississippi and Missouri rivers at Alton, Miss., and Fort Bellefontaine, Mo., are to be opened for traffic. The bridges have been christened Lewis and Clark, in honor of Capts. Meriwether Lewis and William Clark, who started their famous expedition to the northwest from that point in 1804. The length of the $2,500,000 project is seven miles and the scene from the bridges is highly picturesque. Above, a sketch of the bridges and the surrounding region.

RACE HORSE WINS AS RESULT OF GLANDS, IS DR. VORONOFF'S CLAIM

(International News Service)

LISBON, July 20. — A successful glandular operation on a race-horse, resulting in its winning the Grand Hurdle Race at Auteuil, was described here by Dr. Serge Voronoff, the famous "monkey-gland" surgeon, before he left for Brazil to lecture at Rio University of Medicine.

The horse was Don Zuniga. Dr. Voronoff stated that he had operated on the horse when a colt, and ascribed his victory to the gland grafting.

PRAISEWORTHY PROCEDURE

Governor Smith Reveals Plans

Overhauling Of Federal Government Machinery Said To Be Idea

HAS CONFERENCE WITH SENATOR

By RAYMOND I. BORST,
International News Service Staff Correspondent

ALBANY, N. Y., July 20.—A complete overhauling of the machinery of the federal government and the consolidation and elimination of overlapping and useless bureaus, boards and commissions in the interests of economy and efficiency is planned by Governor Al Smith in the event of his election to presidency.

This was revealed by the governor to United States Senators Millard E. Tydings of Maryland and Harry B. Hawes of Missouri, recent guests at the executive mansion.

The governor impressed upon Tydings and Hawes that he proposed to conduct a "constructive" campaign and not one of criticism.

"I want my campaign and my administration, if I am elected, to be constructive," the governor was quoted by Senator Tydings. "I want things to be done to better the national government."

One of the outstanding achievements of Smith's four terms as governor of New York has been his reorganization of the state government in which he consolidated the 190 bureau and agencies into 18 main departments.

According to close friends of the governor he feels the same thing can be accomplished in authority for the statement that the governor will stress the need for an overhauling and reorganization of the federal government in his notification speech next month.

With the aid of several of his advisers, the governor, since his nomination, has been making a careful study of the operation of the federal government, particularly its countless boards and commissions. He is said to have become convinced, as a result of this study, that a material reduction in the cost of the national government can be effected through a process of reorganization, and he is prepared to point the way in his notification address.

Governor Smith has no intention, in the event of his election, to demand any changes in the prohibition law which would be objectionable to believers in temperance and good government, Senator Tydings declared.

Old Homes Razed To Make Room For Great Reservoir

(International News Service)

NEW HAVEN, Conn., July 20.—Two billion gallons of water have flooded a vast area northeast of this city where eventually a reservoir of fifteen billion gallons will be impounded to add to the New Haven supply of potable water.

The reservoir is listed as the largest in New England, covering four hundred acres of hill and dale in what five years ago was one of the last retreats of ancient Connecticut. Ten thousand feet of tunnel were drilled through a high mountain and water syphoned from a lake to the eastward.

To make room for thetunnel some of the oldest houses in the United States were razed, many being moved to other sites because of their historic import, and portions of others placed in buildings of Yale University and in museums through the country.

North Carolina Leads Tobacco States In East

(International News Service)

RALEIGH, N. C., July 20.—With the opening of the tobacco season in the Southeastern states just around the corner, agricultural experts expect to see North Carolina again lead the nation in production of the golden weed.

In the 1927-28 season North Carolina exceeded its record for former years by nearly 100,000,000 pounds. In the past season, 470,469,301 pounds were marketed in the warehouses of this state. The preceding year only 371,578,758.

Speculate on Price

Speculation however rested principally upon the price of the weed this season. While reports show that the cigarette consumption of the world is increasing, North Carolina—the largest cigarette-tobacco area in the world—has been reaping a steadily increasing yield in recent years.

Last year saw a slight decline in the price average for the tobacco sold in the state. The price was $22.00 per hundred pounds, compared with $25.53 for the preceding year.

The earlist tobacco belt to start the auction season in the southeast is the Georgia belt, which will begin operation August 1, one day earlier than last year. One week later the South Carolina belt opens.

Eastern Opening

The biggest belt of the entire area opens on August 28 in Eastern North Carolina. The United States Tobacco association set this date, although many petitions were sent them, asking for an even earlier opening. As it stands, the opening is 12 days earlier than the 1927-28 opening.

The Middle Belt of North Carolina—another big belt—starts the ball to rolling on September 11, eleven days earlier than last season. The Old Belt of North Carolina, which includes some of the border markets in Virginia, opens the season on September 25, ten days earlier than last year.

Publicity Stunt Says Relative Of Girl Hermit Life

Judge William A. Stone Scores Two Half-Sisters For Publicity Yarn

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, July 20.—At least one of the "rich relatives" who are supposed to be duly shocked to learn that Isobel and Margaret Stone, daughters of the late Governor William A. Stone of Pennsylvania are living on a barge in New York while they win fame and fortune, refuses to throw up his hands in horror.

"I think it's all a publicity stunt," Judge Stephen Stone, their half brother, said here today.

In the first place, Judge Stone denied that Governor Stone was a millionaire. His estate amounted to approximately $23,000, he said. And in the second place, he said, the girls have received money from at least one of the supposedly shocked relatives—Judge Stone himself.

"They may be in somewhat straitened circumstances, but I don't think it's so bad as it's made out to be," he said.

The late Governor Stone served from 1898 to 1902, gaining nationwide attention when he ordered 2,000 troops into the anthracite fields when strike trouble threatened in 1900.

Roaming Round With Richards

Some News, Some Views, But Mostly Just Observations Of Interesting Things Around New Castle

Harry Lauder it is who loves to go "roamin' in the gloamin'" but roaming in a cloudburst has its advantages. That is if you look at it that way. Got caught smack dab right in the middle of that storm last night and driving was attended with more or less hazards.

There was considerable humor at that. Washington street was a pretty little lake and side streets kept pouring tons of water into it.

The storm showed the need of water wings for automobiles. After forcing a car through that lake on Butler avenue four times the cylinders sounded as though they had the epizootic. One big car loaded with tourists stuck right in the middle of the lake and they spent the next half hour yelling for somebody to rescue them.

It takes more than a storm to stop a dance at the field club. The lights went A. W. O. L. about ten o'clock and for the next hour the dance was conducted by candle light.

Standing on the field club porch was an awesome sight. The view is an unobstructed one for several miles and as that lightning shot its way across the skies it lighted up the surrounding country. Elysiam Electric Lighting Company was working overtime and the display was something one remembers.

Plenty of work for the street department this morning. Every street in town, nearly, requires attention and for the next day or so the boys will have plenty of exercise with the Shovel Drill. Allez oop!

The stupidity of cows is amazing if you'll permit a little philosophizing. The mental reactions of the bovine family seem to work in reverse and what you think they should do they usually decide to oppose. A friend of mine has a flock or a boquet of cows that got marooned in a field last night. The water kept climbing up and up and finally had the herd cornered.

As a last resort a section of fence was cut to let the cows onto the road and get them across a bridge to higher ground. Were they interested? They were not. After cutting the fence they stood there, feet awash with the flood, mooing out their discontent to the world, but refusing to budge.

Finally a couple of calves came through, and later the herd followed. With the road clear to safety, two of them decided to go back into the danger zone and swim to the higher ground. They did it, but only after a pretty struggle with the swirling torrent.

The date for the Harold Haid celebration in Forbes Field has now been set for Friday, August 10. Plan to take part of the day off and go down for the event. Its a nice courtesy to a lad who has made good, and if all signs are right, he will be a member of the National League champions this year.

Asks Permission To Erect Billboard

Council Reports South Mill Street Problem To Board Of Appeals

Attorney Clyde Gibson today represented the Max Ludwig company during a session of council at the city building and asked council's reason for the building clerk's refusal of a permit for the construction of a billboard at the site formerly occupied by the Liberty theater.

Council gave as their belief that were a billboard erected the rear would become a place where nuisances would be committed whereupon Gibson said that a billboard would be more suitable from the present appearance and it was a duty of the police department to see that no nuisances are committed.

He read an opinion of the Supreme court which was likened to the case under discussion and said council had no legal right to prevent a billboard being erected. Officials of the company told councilmen they would keep the site clear of rubblish.

He told council that the body was "passing the buck" but Councilman Davies denied this stating that the matter should be referred to the board of appeals, zoning law, as similar requests in the past had resulted in a betterment for the city and petitioners.
